Town officials challenge electric rate changes

Wilmington officials are challenging an electric rate increase scheduled to take effect on June 1.

At a hearing called by the Board of Selectmen on Monday afternoon, Town Counsel Alan Altman recommended that the selectmen file a petition with the Mass. Dept. of Public Utilities to require Reading Light to negotiate with the town and to stay the rates until a hearing is held.

Under the new rates, which were announced in April, Reading Light would implement a $2.22 per month service charge for all residential customers, and a surcharge during the summer months on all electric usage over 250 kilowatt hours, or 500 kilowatt hours for customers with controlled electric water heaters.

Offsetting these increases would be a reduction of the fuel adjustment charge of one cent per kilowatt hours.

Monday afternoon's session was stormy, and was interpreted differently by the opposing parties. Wilmington officials called the meeting as a hearing, but Atty. Nicholas Scobbo said that Reading Light officials were present as a courtesy to hear the concerns and called the meeting an informal conference. Norbert Rhinerson, general manager of Reading Light and Alan Ames, a member of the board, accompanied Scobbo.

Scobbo said that the rates were not subject to negotiation. He said that Reading Light intended to hold a hearing in mid-June on the new rates.

"I don' tthink we're here to negotiate," Scobbo said.

Altman said that his interpretation of the law was different than Scobbo's, referring to the 1908 statute which establishes the relationship between Wilmington and the Reading Municipal Light Dept. He then recommended that the selectmen file a further petition before the DPU, to require negotiations, and to stay the rates.

A short time later, Altman asked, somewhat abruptly, if the light department had a position on a buyout, as set forth in section four (of the 1908 statute).

Scobbo said they hadn't come prepared to discuss that, and that they hadn't yet heard the specific problems with the new rates.

Altman said that the RMLD hearing in mid-June is not the

Good Guy

Like every newly-announced Good Guy before him, Frank Kelley (center) was ushered into the Good Guy Award Dinner in a state of shock on Friday night. Jack Cushing (left) and Ken Spinelli are each former recipients of the award.

Frank Kelley is Good Guy for 1985

Most anyone who attended Wilmington High School in the past 25 years knows Frank Kelley. He is known as the school's toughest math teacher, and an inspiring track coach.

Frank Kelley's reputation caught up with him on Friday night. Walking into the Wilmington Sons of Italy Hall, Frank stopped to tie his shoelace. He heard Michael Caira announcing, "Ladies and gentleman, I would like to introduce the 1985 Good Guy, Frank Kelley.

The occasion was Wilmington's annual Good Guy Dinner, a tradition which began 17 years ago. Each year, a committee of past Good Guys selects a new Good guy.

Mr. Kelley has taught math in Wilmington High School since 1957. Anyone who has passed a math course with Frank Kelley has completed a major accomplishment. A C in one of his courses is considered a good mark. Kelley served as head of the Math Department for a few years in the 1960's, but stepped down when he had to choose between that position and coaching track. He was also a vice-principal for a year, but gave that up because he wanted to teach a full schedule.

Frank Kelley is a man with some strange but well-known characteristics. A fresh-air fiend, he keeps a window open in his classroom, even on the coldest days. Any student not paying attention can expect a rude awakening, possibly being hit by a blackboard eraser. Mr. Kelley detests interruptions by the public address system, and often throws an eraser at the loudspeaker. Once he knocked it off the wall.

The Kelley sense of humor is famous. Before getting down to business, Kelley starts of each class with a bad joke.

Kelley is also one of the premier track coaches in the state. Each year, Kelley actively recruits students for the track team, and consistently fields one of the larger teams in the conference, from the smallest school in the conference. And although he has coached a team to a state championship, Kelley enthusiastically supports even the slowest runner on the team.

"Mr. Kelley was on your side, no matter whether someone took first place or last place," said Mike Esposito, who is now coach of the Billerica High School football team. Well-known for his football exploits at WHS, Esposito went on to a brilliant career at Boston College and later played pro ball for the Atlanta Falcons and the Los Angeles Rams. But he told the people at the Good Guy dinner that he had also been on Mr. Kelley's track team, and credited Kelley with helping him develop as an athlete.

Two current members of the track team also spoke. Discus thrower David Hamilton, a junior, told of Kelley's policy on cuts. "He makes no cuts. When

Two local names among superintendent finalists

By Arlene Surprenant

"Five strong candidates" for school superintendent were approved by Wilmington School Committee members at their Wednesday night meeting, according to Chairman Tony Accardi. Included among the finalists were two local candidates.

The five finalists, pared down from 12 semi-finalists, are:

David DeRuzzo, superintendent, Jefferson County Public Schools, Louisville, Ky.

William Fay, principal, West Intermediate School, Wilmington.

Timothy Gormley, superintendent, Rumford, Maine.

Robert Horan, assistant superintendent, Wilmington.

Barbara Hunt, principal, Daniel Webster School, Belmont, Ma.

In arriving at the five finalists, committee members voted by number rather than names to protect each of the 12 candidates in case of comments made on their character. Only one of the finalists received the unanimous vote of the entire board.

The five names were not released to the public until all 12 were notified of the vote last Thursday.

Now, committeemen anticipate making on site visits to the out of town candidates, beginning the week of May 27.

Accardi views the visits as the "most important aspect" of the selection process. Unless you "get out there and see them (the finalists) and visualize the potential for our system," you can't make a viable choice, he said.

Bridget Zukas said she would not look at anyone she has any doubts about, while Shirley Callan said she'd like to make the visits as "I'm not the only one who has to live with the results."

Phil Fenton questioned the validity of the on site visitation, saying you'd only get positive feedback.

Public interviews of all five candidates are expected to begin the week of June 3, with the hope that a new superintendent will be on board by the end of June, when Dr. Carol Sager leaves the system.

A memorial service will take place in the Veterans' Lot at 11 a.m.

On Sunday afternoon from 1 to 3:30 p.m. a contingent of veterans will rededicate the memorial parks within the town.

The Star of Trees — Thomas O. Sullivan

The Sycamore tree stood straight and tall,
The large White Oak heard the call.
There was whispering going on, down below,
Among the maple saplings, growing so slow.
Everywhere spring was beginning to burst.
Already some leaves were showing their thirst.
The rain that should have been on its way,
Had not shown up; there was a delay!

There seemed to be some kind of a pause,
As if there was a reason and a cause,
To wait for awhile, before the show could start,
With the Maestro, wand, held high, lips apart.
Then the star of the show was on his way,
Everything was ready for his big day.
The curtain went up, the trees all swayed,
Tom was on stage, we applauded as we prayed.

He stood apart from the roaring crowd,
With a beautiful smile and head held proud.
The love he had for his chosen profession,
Known by his fans, was bearing fruition.
Then the play was over — he saw his friends
As he stood there bowing 'till the very end.
Oh, Tom we loved you, we didn't want you to go,
But God Almighty had booked you for one of His shows.

Pussy willow The largest pussy willow tree in the United States was located in North Wilmington, until it was lost in a storm in 1983. It is shown as it appeared while in bloom in May, 1972.

Pussy willow tree was largest in U.S.

Yes, the biggest pussy willow tree in the United States grew in Wilmington, Mass.

An item in the May issue of Yankee magazine had prompted some inquiries from people who have recently become residents. It also prompted a letter from Helen Heath of Ballston Spa, New York. She is well known to Wilmington residents because her late husband, Harland Whittredge, was for years a Wilmington High School teacher.

The biggest pussy willow tree in the United States was planted in 1926. Les Durkee, an employee of the Wilmington Water Department did the planting for a lady whose name the writer has forgotten.

She may have lived in the Fourth of July House, which is at 94 Andover Street, or she may have lived next door, at 100 Andover Street where Lorraine Knight lives today.

The Fourth of July House, it should be remarked, gets its name honestly. It was raised on July 4, 1776, the day of the Declaration of Independence, and is exactly as old as is the Republic known as the United States of America.

About the time that the pussy willow tree was 50 years old two Avco employees, on their way home one summer evening, came to a halt as they passed the site. They knew of a tree in Chicago which was supposed to be the biggest pussy willow tree, but this seemed to be bigger.

The two men, who lived in Andover, returned the next day to measure the tree and Ralph Knight, who lived next door, called the Town Crier out of curiosity. The Town Crier took pictures, of course.

It was established that the North Wilmington tree was the biggest pussy willow in the United States and that was that.

After that, once in a while the Town Crier took a picture of the tree, in the springtime when the catkins were blooming. Not much other attention was paid to the tree.

Until yankee magazine said it was the largest tree growing, etc., etc.

The fact is that the largest pussy willow tree blew down in a storm a year ago last November. The Town Crier had a story and pictures of that event.

And Adele Passmore, who lives in the Fourth of July House, has a lot of pictures, and some nice stories about that tree.

letter to the editor

Dear Larz:

In a statement made by one of the school committee members, reported in the May 15 issue of the Town Crier.

He said he wasn't surprised that they lost the increase in the school budget for the coming year because of the elderly.

After the support they received at the previous town meeting in support of the addition to the high school.

Mr. Peterson said some people have short memories.

I am an elderly citizen. I have grandchildren attending Wilmington High School and it's important that all of us work together for the interest of all people, and the welfare of the town of Wilmington.

I would like to thank all the parents of school age children for their support in behalf of the elderly of the town of Wilmington.

point of view

Tools of the trade

by Arlene Surprenant

The business of schools is teaching. One wonders, after sitting through town meeting and recent school committee meetings, if this message is getting through.

For the first time, to my knowledge, a school budget was defeated by town meeting vote. In the past, one heard often justified complaints about fat in the school budget and funds left over at the end of the year.

This year, however, voter action has only succeeded in placing an additional burden on school department shoulders.

School officials have responded by making large cuts in non-salaried items such as library materials and art supplies and severly limiting new textbook purchases and much needed audio-visual equipment repairs. That's for starters.

In the end, it is our children who will be shortchanged. In the end, it is our teachers who will face yet one more challenge in a year of uncertainty due to the high school renovaton and reorganization of the central office.

The point is simply this: How can our teachers teach without the proper tools?

Think about it. If you were a carpenter, could you build without hammer and nails? If you were a seamstress, could you sew without needle and thread? If you were a teacher in the Wilmington School System, could you do a good job without enough textbooks, supplies, and audio-visual equipment to enhance day to day lessons?

The answer has to be a resounding NO.

Wimington has to rethink its priorities. There has to be another solution. What's wrong with user fees, not only for students participating in interscholastic athletics, but for those involved in other programs as well?

What's wrong with asking for some extra help with renovation costs, especially since additional funds may be available in the fall, a good portion of which will be "education related?"

What's wrong with cutting back further on extra-curricular programs across the board — programs which, sadly, must take second place to classroom priorities?

I fully appreciate the difficulties involved in paring down the school budget.

But, whatever happens, let's not compound the problem by penalizing our children or crippling our teachers in the year ahead.

Last chance to save school

The 89-year old Walker School is scheduled to be demolished sometime this summer. Wilmington Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski said the demolition contract will go out for bid next month.

The school has been closed for several years, and vandals have begun breaking windows.

The town has no definite plans for the site. It isn't as if the land has to be cleared so that a new building can go up. There will only be a vacant lot.

The town manager said he cannot find a use for it that will pay its own way and be compatible with the zoning by-law. The land is zoned for residential use.

About four years ago, the town spent $10,000 studying five town-owned buildings for re-use. One of these was the Walker School. The study looked at converting the building to condominiums, to office space as well as some other uses.

Because of its size, condition and zoning, however, consultants told the town that a developer would not be able to make money converting the building to another use.

The building is a basic 1896 school, not beautifully ornate, not a castle. But it is characteristic of Wilmington for that era, and for that reason it deserves to be saved.

Wilmington has very few buildings of any architectural significance. There is no Taj Mahal here. But there is the Walker School. It is now 89 years old, and there is a good chance that Wilmington will never have a 90-year old Walker School, never mind 100 or 200 years.

What is needed to save the school is a proposal for its use. The user would have to lease the building, since the town has a three-year moratorium on the sale of town-owned land. If the use is not allowed in a residential zone, it would have to be something that would convince a town meeting to change the zoning. It would also have to be self-supporting.

If nobody comes forward with a use for the old school, it will be gone by the end of summer.

letters to the editor

Dear Larz:

Where are the groups of boys and girls, now grown into productive men and women in their 20s, who were guided by the earnest efforts of Dr. Harriet Allen in Wilmington? Why are they not speaking out for her position, or perhaps they do not realize what she has done for them.

Without a calculator, one can easily figure how much psychological "contract" time will be available to the Wilmington school children and how effective it will be, if her position is eliminated.

Is this job a political bone? It does not appear that the school committee has the welfare of our kids at heart. During the time I served on the school committee, I sat with juveniles from Wilmington and Judge Cullen in the Woburn Court on more than one occasion, when there was no court psychological assistance for Wilmington children in trouble, and Dr. Allen then "bailed us out."

Also, she held small study groups at my home, as well as others, for some "borderline" kids, who she felt were "good" kids, but not adjusted well. To my knowledge, all of those kids made it! She also assisted me in reclaiming one youngster who had gone to jail instead of to Vietnam, by seeing him in prison when possible, and when he finished his term, by counselling him on educational possibilities. He is now graduating from college and has a scholarship to obtain his masters degree in sociology! Her advice also helped the rest of us in the Clan to cope with his incarceration.

You others in Wilmington, whom Dr. Allen has helped — Speak up!! I doubt that many of us could have made it without her assistance. Don't let the kids of the future be victims of a political tug-of-war!!

Sincerely,
Nancy H. Clark

Dear Larz:

I do not have any intentions of turning your column into a debating forum. However, after last week's comments by Mr. Parker, I feel that he has raised some concerns that do require some clarification.

I would like to clarify the fact that the D.A.V. is not asking the Town of Wilmington to give them a building. We are asking to rent, lease, or purchase a building that the town no longer needs. The D.A.V., like other organizations he mentioned, did have a building of its own. It was broken into, vandalized, and set fire to by intruders. The members at the time, of which Mr. Parker was one, neglected to carry fire insurance and all was lost.

The members who built the D.A.V. also contributed to the building of the V.F.W., and the American Legion, but that was many years ago and now those same members can not do what they could then.

Respectfully,
Frederick V. Shine, Commander
Wilmington D.A.V.

A mushroom story with 16 morels

Half a pound of morel mushrooms were found, on one site in Wilmington on May 21. The total number picked was 13. And, with the price of morels being $100 a pound, that half pound comes out at $50 or better.

They were growing in the yard of Ernest and Dora Ardolino, of 1 Broad Street, Wilmington. Dora, Tuesday morning spotted them and recalled the picture that had been in the Town Crier on May 15.

May 15 had been proclaimed by the Town Crier to be Morel Day, the day to pick morels. The reason is that sometime after May 15 the morels, which may be labeled the "fruit" of the mushroom growth, ripen and produce spores.

The mushroom can be said to "pop" when the spores are released. Millions of spores come from one mushroom, and are carried through the air by the breezes, to land on somesite that may or may no induce further growth. Only a few spores of the millions released each year, promote further growth of mushrooms.

It was a surprise, a pleasant surprise to learn on May 21 that there were morels which had not released their spores. Dora Ardolino said there were nine growing in the lawn in the back yard.

The Town Crier paid a visit to the Ardolino family and found not nine but 16 morels. They were beside the shed. They were in back, near the shrubbery. They might have been growing in the poison ivy, but no personal investigation was made at that place.

Three morels were left, unpicked, to produce spores for the next years' crop. The rest were taken away, thanks to Dora, who didn't think she would like to eat them.

Puppet show tops arts events

The Bennington Puppets amazed and entertained students at the West Intermediate School recently, with their production of Richard Wagner's "The Ring" cycle. The professional touring marionette theatre presented a theatrical experience highlighted by a fire-breathing dragon.

Sponsored by the Department of Performing and Fine Arts, the West Intermediate and a grant from the Institute for the Arts, the troupe brought alive the Icelandic and German folk material and Wagner's orchestral music. Curriculum material in music classes will be integrated into this magical arts event.

In other arts department news, the WHS Performing and Fine Arts Department has announced that Tina Allen, Class of '86 was selected as an honorable mention award winner in the Congressional Art Contest, "Artistic Discovery" for Congressman Markey's district. Minutemen to defy Redcoats in Liberty Pole ceremony

The Wilmington Company of Minutemen will hold its annual Liberty Pole ceremony at Rotary Park on Sunday, June 2.

The event begins at Wilmington Common at 2 p.m., with the Minutemen parade along Middlesex Avenue to Rotary Park, drawing the pole behind them. Several other companies of Minutemen accompany the Wilmington group in the parade.

At Rotary Park, the Minutemen erect the pole, with a stocking cap on top. Once the pole is up, a company of British troops arrives on the scene, demanding that the pole be removed. A mock battle ensues.

The afternoon's events are supposed to resemble events such as would have occurred in the period leading up to the American Revolution.

Citizens group awarded $75K in civil suit

by Arlene Surprenant

The Concerned Citizens of Wilmington were awarded an out of court settlement of $75,000 May 14 by Berkshire Builders, in a long standing suit brought against that firm for malicious prosecution.

Concerned Citizens' Chairman Paul Theodos revealed Saturday that the New Hampshire building firm, which had made several prior offers to the citizen group, agreed to pay the $75,000 but denied all liability.

The Concerned Citizens and Berkshire Builders were embroiled in a HUD housing controversy in town in 1980 which led to a suit and counter-suit by the two factions.

In March, 1980, the citizen group was sued by Berkshire for $5 million for opposing the HUD housing project then planned for the town under the auspices of the Wilmington Housing Authority (WHA). Berkshire Builders was to build the elderly and low to moderate units for the WHA.

According to Theodos, those named in the suit were Robert Cassidy, Anthony DeLucca, George Dyers, Daniel Gillis, James Gorman, Ed McLaughlin, Duncan McNeil, Margaret McNeil, Tracy Nixon, and Paul Theodos. Also named were the Wilmington Board Selectmen and the WHA.

The case was subsequently dismissed in court when the building firm was told, in effect, it had no right to sue, said Theodos. The Concerned Citizens, represented by attorneys Widett, Slater, and Goldman, in turn sued Berkshire Builders for malicious prosecution.

Theodos attributes the successful outcome of the countersuit to the "tenacity" of the Concerned Citizens in pursuing its grievance.

Among the many gifts he received was a clock from the Wilmington Athletic Dept. Atlhetic Director Jim Gillis, a former student of Kelley's told of receiving early-morning phone calls from Mr. Kelley, asking for a bus. Gillis also presented Kelley with a varsity letter, saying that Mr. Kelley ahd been whining about it for seven years.

Other gifts included a Paul Revere bowl from the town, presented by Selectman Jim Stewart, a plaque from the Recreation Department, presented by former Good Guy Larry Noel, and a plaque from the Merrimack Valley Conference.

Among those present for the award dinner were his mother, Katherine, his sister, Jacqueline Carlton and her family, and his uncle, Henry McCabe.

Kelley was presented to the gathering as a Good Guy by last year's recipient of the award, Ken Spinelli. Spinelli also gave Mr. Kelley the bad news. Next year, he (Kelley) would be chairman of the event and he can't get out of it.

Mr. Kelley told how he was conned into coming to the dinner. He was told by Jim Gillis that Mike Caira was to be the recipient, and that a package was to arrive at the parking lot of the North Intermediate School for Caira. Could Mr. Kelley pick up the package and deliver it.

Kelley said that teaching is "the most important job, and the rewards are above and beyond what anybody could expect."

Tewksbury awards sewer contracts

Tewksbury Selectmen, acting as public works commissioners, voted Tuesday to award contracts for two sewer extension projects that will enter construction phases in late June. The board also voted to proceed with a formal application for a state grant to help fund another sewer extension project that could get underway in the spring of 1986.

Both contracts were awarded Tuesday to the low bidder, Albanese Bros., Inc. of Malden, and will entail work in several areas of North and South Tewksbury. Work on the projects must start before June 26 if the town is to receive reimbursements from the state.

The $2 million project was approved at the annual town meeting in 1983. The town stands to receive reimbursements from the state for about $1.3 million of the actual construction costs.

Work covered under the $1,188,255.40 contract number 12 will see sewer extensions built on parts of North Street, Catamount Road, Livingston Street, Kendall Road, and Roper Lane. Contract 12 also covers installation of sewers on all of Cayuga Road and Brentwood Road. Some cross country work to tie those extensions into the main trunk line will also be performed under contract 12.

Work covered under the $1,588,725.10 contract number 13 includes installation of sewer extensions on all of the following streets: Cleghorn Lane, Crest Road, Trull Brook Lane, Ronald Drive, Revere Road, and Benson Road.

Parts of the following streets will also be included in contract 13: River Road, Trull Road, Shawsheen Street (from the Tewksbury Market to Ronald Drive), Wolcott Street, South Street (from Franklin Street to Benson Road), and Vernon Street.

Contract 13 will also finish sewer lines on Patriot Road, Edith Drive and Lake Street. Parts of those streets received sewer lines under the town's first sewer program.

Engineers from the town's sewer consulting firm of Camp Dresser and McKee (CDM) told the board Tuesday that construction on the contracts, which total $2,776,980.50, could get underway by June 20.

CDM engineers also got needed approval from the board to submit an application for state funding for two future sewer extension contracts.

A special town meeting in November of 1984 gave approval to fund $3.4 million for a fiscal 1985 sewer project. All the plans and specifications are complete and the package will be sent to the state within a week, the engineers said. The town should learn by July 1 whether they have received state funding for the two contract project that will see construction in parts of East and North Tewksbury.

Areas being considered for inclusion in contract 14 include Fiske Street, Maplewood Road, Woodcrest Drive, Deering Drive, Westland Drive, Livingston Street (near the Saunders Circle elederly housing project), Main Street (from the Airport to Victor Drive), Pinewood Road, Wildwood Road, Tanglewood Road, and Hinckley Road.

Areas being considered for inclusion in contract 15 include Karen Lee Lane, East Street (from Maple Street to the Andover town line), Leston Street, Kingston Road, Quincy Road, Ellington Road, Kimberly Drive, Carter Street, Cart Path Road, and Regis Road.

Both contracts would also include a certain amount of cross country work.

The amount of state funding and the actual construction bid prices will determine the exact extent of the fiscal 1985 project.

A look at area nursery schools

by Arlene Surprenant

Traditionally, spring is the growing season. It is also the season when parents of pre-schoolers seek out schools for the following year, schools designed to help young minds and bodies grow.

While many fine nursery schools abound in the Wilmington - Tewksbury area, we highlight four here whose reputation for excellence has preceded them.

Country Mouse Nursery School

Though it's only been in existence for two years, the Country Mouse Nursery School is already well known among area residents. It is located in, but not affiliated with, the Tewksbury United Methodist Church at the corner of South and Main Streets.

Under the direction of teacher and founder Debbie Cabral, everything about the school bespeaks a warm, caring atmosphere.

Fellow teacher Pat Ryan elaborates. "This is the children's first experience with school so you want it to be special. . .When kindergarten starts and they have to go into that large building, we hope the children can feel secure and comfortable in those surroundings." They also hope their pupils develop listening skills and progress socially.

Debbie, Pat, and colleague Judy Carroll work hard to crate the right atmosphere for a successful program. From the first moment they greet pupils by name at the door, they strive to make learning fun and the transition (from home to the more structured school setting) easy. After free play and circle time, they each take eight children and work closely with them, perhaps making bread, butter, or cranberry muffins, or puppets and other projects.

The staff is well prepared, holding regular meetings and setting materials up before children arrive. As Debbie explains, "everything has to run smoothly so we can give the kids all our attention."

They have also been successful in coming up with unique activities which center around weekly themes.

As one parent, Carol Marquis, puts it: the teachers not only give "personalized attention" to their young charges, but also "present children with a world beyond the confines of Tewksbury and Wilmington."

For instance, one week students studied China and learned about the Chinese New Year. Several children dressed in a dragon costume and snaked around the room while their classmates banged exuberantly on musical instruments. They created paper lanterns and rice paper kites, and snacked on pineapple, fortune cookies and Chinese tea. And all three teachers dressed in colorful Chinese pajamas to lend an air of authenticity fo the proceedings.

The physical layout of the room is cozy and inviting. Debbie has divided it into areas of housekeeping, quiet play, learning activities, and busy play with blocks and trucks. By far, the most intriguing area is the special interest section, which changes monthly. In the past, it's been everything from an animal hospital to an office for young executives and a post office.

Debbie offers morning and afternoon sessions three days a week. She limits sessions to 24 students, and currently has a few openings left for next year. All three experienced instructors are state certified.

Abundant Life Learning Center

In contrast to the Country Mouse School, the Abundant Life Learning Center in Wilmington incorporates both a daycare program for children three months old to six years, and a nursery school program for three and four year olds two mornings a week.

Under director Shirley Dionne and the auspices of the Baptist Church, the nursery school program has been in existence for 14 years. Twelve of those years were at the First Baptist Church on Church Street and the latter two at the new Christian school location on Boutwell Road.

The school, says Shirley, is unique in three ways. First and foremost, it's a Christ-centered school teaching God's love and Christian values to anyone wishing to enroll.

Second, Abundant Life is one of the few daycare centers in town. Open from 7 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., it helps meet the needs of area working parents and offers breakfast, lunch and snacks throughout the day.

Third, it is open year round with pre-school activities continuing through the summer, mostly outdoors.

A total of 150 students are enrolled and 20 staff personnel take charge of the Learning Center. The nursery school is under the direction of state certified teacher Barbara Groom, with assistance from volunteer mothers.

Along with providing a secure, stimulating environment, says Shirley, they also teach children as early as possible. They do this through the Self-Pronouncing Alphabet Curriculum developed by Beacon Enterprise Inc. This is not only a pre-reading program where pupils learn letters and their sounds, but the curriculum also integrates early art, math, and science concepts.

Aside from curriculum activities, children learn through music, free play, arts and crafts, show and tell, and "doing their own thing" type projects. They also focus on nature, one time watching baby chicks hatch in an incubator.

When her pupils leave the school, explains Shirley, she hopes they will know God is always there for them. In addition, the children should feel good about themselves, be prepared for the broader school experience, and have a deep respect for the rights of others.

The Children's Corner

Many nursery schools are "parent pleasers," says Dolly Harrison, director and founder of the Children's Corner School on Aldrich Road in Wilmington. "We, on the other hand, try to please the child."

She's a firm believer in letting the child learn and develop at his own pace, without pressure. If you push the child too hard, she adds, he could get "turned off."

At the Children's Corner, each child is treated as an individual, with "a big emphasis on social development," she says. Learning takes place through the "total experience" of free play, arts and crafts, storytime, and outdoor activities.

Though Dolly and fellow teachers Dianne Murray and Barbara Hickey do structure their day, the schedule remains flexible. If a particular activity is going well, they don't cut it short.

During arts and crafts time, for instance, it's easy to get caught up in what they're doing, be it painting at an easel or making collages out of recycled material Dolly has avidly collected over the years.

And Dolly doesn't care about the outcome of such creative attempts as much as she does about the "process" of arriving at the child's "masterpiece."

The physical layout of the school is beautifully geared to child-oriented activities. Four rooms are divided into work centers. One room has a walk-in house and sand box, another a loft type puppet theater, and still another a fully carpeted area for blocks and active play.

The fenced in outdoor area houses several swing sets, a sandbox, picnic tables, and a paved area with many bikes, bigwheels and a basketball court in evidence.

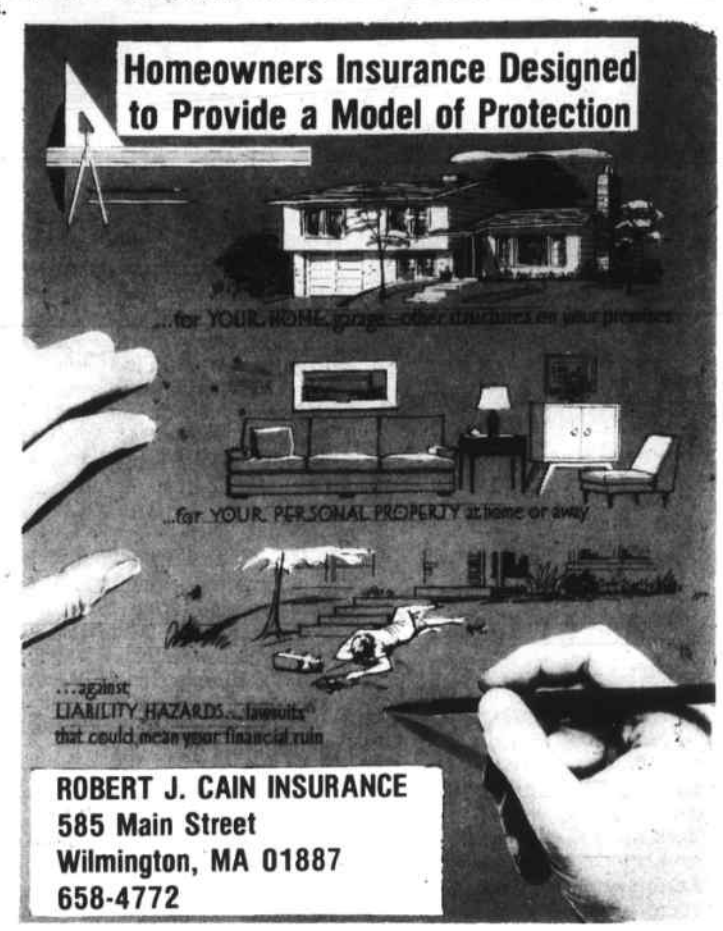

The Children's Corner is home, not only to 38 students aged three to five years, but also to Dolly, husband Ed, and their four children. The Harrison home first housed the school five years ago and has since grown through a series of expansions both indoors and out. In the near future, Dolly hopes to expand her day to include afternoon sessions, "if the interest is there."

Puppet show

A puppet theater is one of the popular features of the Country Mouse Nursery School in Tewksbury. Trying their hand at puppeteering are Sean Kreuger, Tracey Forsythe and Kim Surprenant.

The Anne Sullivan Center

The Anne Sullivan Center is located on the Tewksbury Hospital grounds in the building which used to be the foundling home of Anne Sullivan and her brother, or so the story goes. It is a 766 approved private school operated by the Douglas A. Thom Clinic in Boston since 1971.

According to pre-school team leader Carol Pulssord, the school has earned "a good reputation." it is unique in that it serves the needs of both disabled and able-bodied students, aged three to five years, in an integrated, caring setting.

It has the distinciton of being only one of three such schools in the state and will be publicized by Channel Five's Chronicle in the near future. Pupils come from as far away as Malden, Revere, and Boxford, many on a referral basis.

The schedule and physical environment is appealing and fun-oriented, at the same time taking into account the limits of the special students.

It's not unusual, laughs Carol, for one of the six certified teachers or extra teacher assistants to trip over crutches or wheelchairs throughout the morning as the children move from one room to another.

The four hour session is divided into free play activities, gross motor time (a "typical recess" with time spent on two climbing apparatus, big wheels, swings, or other equipment), open classroom time, and snacks and hot lunch.

During open classroom time, children pursue one or more activities listed on a choice board. These may take the form of dramatic play in a hospital or camping set-up, for example; or various activities in a science area, cognitive section, or quiet corner.

Teachers prepare all materials ahead of time so they can help their young charges learn and interact with one another. One of their goals is to provide each child with the skills he will need in a public school setting, realizing that all 46 children can learn a lot from each other.

Helping the instructors are several therapists and a social worker who runs "incredibly beneficial" support groups for parents.

When they graduate, says Carol, she hopes the able-bodied pupils will have gained "a sensitivity toward people with differences." And the other 50 percent? "a sense of self-esteem and their own self-worth," she adds.

Each of the four schools above welcome parent visits and inquiries to help you learn more about their programs and their approach to caring for your pre-schooler.

Woburn Street School students enjoy arts program

In an endeavor to expose youngsters to various art forms and to develop an awareness of the important role observation plays in great literary and art works, the Woburn Street School P.A.C. is providing a series of Curriculum Enrichment Events this school year.

Drumlin Farm's Traveling Ark provided the program 'Live Animal Interviews' with woodland creatures for all 25 classes. The Thornton W. Burgess Society also provided live animals in the school library for natural history and habitat learning with fourth grade classes. The youngsters experiences were then extended to the arts: through Storytelling by Emily Preston of the Thornton Burgess Society: art workshops directed by artist, Martha E. Cain; or puppetry adaptions of Burgess works by the Gerwick Puppeteers. This programming has been integrated with the Wilmington Public Library's program: A B C Art Books and Children.

Another event provided in this series was the annual visit by Mother Goose to the delight of the kindergarten claases. Yet to come is the Boston Science Museum's outreach program scheduled to visit the fifth grade with its exciting Physical Science Show. A Saturday trip to the Wang Center for the performance of Humperdinck's Hansel and Gretel performed by The Metropolitan Opera Company was offered to youngsters and their families. Tickets for this performance were underwritten by the Boston Opera Association.

This programming has been supported in part by the Institute for the Arts which is funded by the Massachusetts Council on the Arts and Humanities, a state agency whose funds are recommended by the Governor and approved by the legislature and by the National Endowment for the Arts, a federal agency. The Institute is managed by the Cultural Education Collaborative, a private, not - for - profit arts and education agency serving educators throughout Massachusetts.

A celebration of the arts was held on Thursday at Wilmington High School. An impressive art show was open all day in the gymnasium, and an instrumental concert was presented in the auditorium in the evening. Above are the flutists from the elementary band.

Stathis Feizidis played the lead in excerpts from "Fiddler on the Roof," presented during the concert.

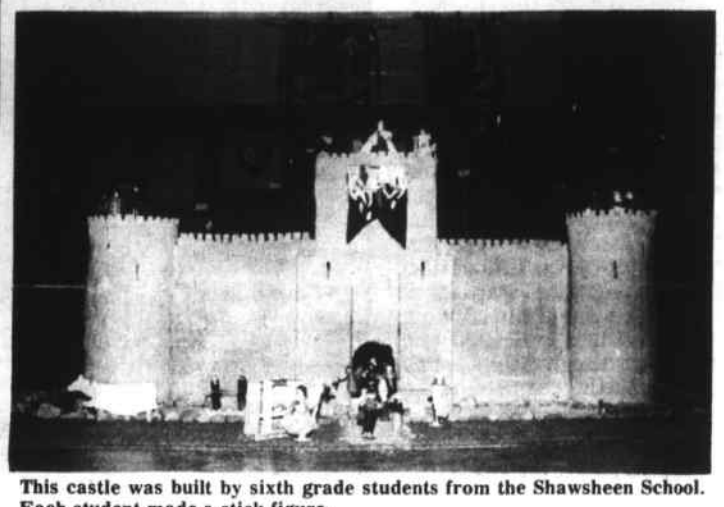

This still life was entered in the art show by Cheryl Bishop.

Artist at work

Mico Kaufman applies finishing touches to the Anne Sullivan - Helen Keller memorial sculpture.
The work will now be sent to a foundry to be cast.

Kaufman finishes Anne Sullivan Memorial

Taking a lesson from the dedication depicted in the sculpture, Tewksbury residents have banded together and dedicated themseleves to seeing that a work honoring Anne Sullivan is finished and donated to the town.

The project started some years ago when Kaufman got the idea to honor former Tewksbury State Hospital resident Anne Sullivan. Mico learned of Sullivan's dedication to life and her efforts to reach Helen Keller and decided it would be a fitting tribute to both her and the town where she resided for many years.

The work is completed and is ready to be sent to the foundry to be cast, but the fund raising effort that started shortly before the 250th Anniversary Celebration got underway continues.

Kaufman has created a true work of art. He captures Sullivan's dedication to her teaching by depicting her with Hellen Keller, the young girl born deaf and blind, when Helen first grasped the concept of sign lanuage.

It was Sullivan's teaching and dedication to helping the young girl that brought Helen to an understanding that there can be communication between human beings.

The turning point of Helen Keller's life is depicted in Kaufman's work which is proposed to be erected on the lawn on the side of town hall in Tewksbury. Anne Sullivan had put Helen's hand under a pump so she could feel water flow, and then, patiently, spelled again and again in Helen's hand, the hand symbols used to spell the word water.

Three extended fingers. The sign for the letter "W", which Helen would later understand to mean water, are being met by the three extended fingers of Helen Keller.

The Committee of Interested Citizens of Tewksbury is seeking $50,000 to complete the project. They have already raised $30,000 of that amount and hope to soon go over the top.

Residents wishing to take part in this community project, where so many have dedicated themselves to seeing it to completion, can do so by sending whatever donation they can afford, be it $1, $5, or $10, to: Anne Sullivan-Helen Keller Sculpture Fund in care of the Andover Bank, 993 Main St., Tewksbury, Ma. 01876.

Water commissioners ponder Avco's solid wastes

A letter addressed to "Regonal Stapczynski" of Wilmington, from the Metropolitan District Commisson has done nothing toward clearing up the mystery of why there are so many solids, in the sewage from Avco. The letter had been mailed on May 7th and was read in the meeting of the Wilmington Water and Sewer Commissioners on May 16.

Two weeks earlier, the commissioners, in checking over material containing reports on sewer use, noted the excessively heavy "solid wastes" being listed from Avco. Three million pounds of solid wastes annually was attributed to the Wilmington plant.

Chairman George Allan and others believed it to be a case of a misplaced decimal point, and that Avco possibly has 3,000 pounds of solid wastes in a year. A visiting representative of the MDC promised he would check.

The letter to Regional Stapczynski contained a lot of print-outs, from the MDC computers, none of which could be understood by the chairman, a professional engineer, or by a visiting engineer.

Chairman Allan called the print-outs "gobbledygook" and said the MDC was out to "bury us in junk."

Every fire department needs an elephant

An elephant recently saved the day for the Wilmington Fire Department.

A brush fire was reported near the end of Fordham Road in Wilmington during the first week of May. The fire was behind the Aleppo Temple, home of the Shriners.

There was an access road to the fire scene, but the road was blocked by some large boulders.

That's where the elephant came in.

The circus was in town for the week, and where there's a circus, there are elephants. The trainer harnessed up an elephant and moved the boulders.

After that, it was just a routine brush fire.

Substance Abuse — "Let's Talk About It"

by Anne D. Linehan

(Mrs. Linehan has been actively involved in the school age alcohol and drug abuse campaign since 1974. She is current chairman of the Wilmington Chemical People Task Force, New England Director of the Chemical People Task Force, Greater Lowell Chairman of one of the National Federation of Parents for a Drug Free Youth, affiliated with the Governor's Alliance Against Drugs and a member of the Wilmington School Committee Substance Abuse Task Force.)

The most frequent question I am asked by parents is "How can I tell if my child is abusing drugs or alcohol?"

Answer: If you find alcohol, drugs, or drug paraphernalia in your child's possession, there's a strong probability that your child is a regular user of drugs. Certain behaviors also can warn you that your child may be involved with drugs:

— Abrupt change in mood or attitude
— Sudden decline in attendance or performance at work or school
— Sudden resistance to discipline at home or school
— Impaired relationship with family or friends
— Ignoring curfews
— Unusual flare-up of temper

Can parents help prevent drug dependence? YES, they can, In fact parents are the best protection young people have against drug abuse. Your role in drug prevention means stopping drug abuse before it starts.

You've probably already started. You're raising your children with love, guidance, and support, and if you are doing these things you are well on the way to helping prevent drug abuse. Strong family unity and support will help children develop the personal values and self-confidence they need to resist peer pressure to use drugs.

What else can you do? As a parent you can provide accurate information to your children about drugs.

You must look at your attitudes regarding drugs and alcohol. That doesn't mean becoming a "drug expert," but it does mean having enough facts to support your views. Children need to be reminded often of where their parents stand on important issues such as drugs.

The purpose of this column will be to help families answer and understand frustrating questions, in a non-blaming way, regarding the national school-age drug and alcohol epidemic. This danger to our children is so great, so personal, so unmanageable alone we must work on the premise that within each community resides a releasable force, a force more powerful than that generated by a single individual or single institution.

Despair is wrong, hope is right. Our goal as parents and concerned citizens must be a drug free young America. We must resume our role as guardians of our children and help them to say "NO" to alcohol and other drugs.

I believe that a commitment to simple, family based values of drug-free love and hard work, in combination with our public schools and law enforcement officials is the best hope of ending this epidemic.

When it comes to solving the drug problems, the family's the place to start and we will try to help families deal with this vital issue facing our nation's youth. We must become educated and united in our message no drugs - no alcohol for underage minors.

Please, send your questions to this newspaper, they will be answered and your identity held in confidence.

(Information in this column compiled from accurate information supplied by Department of Health and Human Services, National Federation of Parents for a Drug Free Youth, parent Research Institute on Drug Abuse University of Georgia, National Institute on Drug Abuse, Washington D.C., American Psychiatric Association and other scientific materials.)

Amanda Farkas captures gold medal

Nine-year-old Amanda Farkas, a member of the Wilmington Figure Skating Club, recently competed in several figure skating competitions. At the end of February she entered the Yarmouth Open Freeystyle Championships held at the Gallo Ice Arena in Bourne. Amanda placed first in the Preliminary Girls freestyle event, winning a gold medal, and third in the team compulsory moves category, earning a bronze medal.

March 2 and 3, the North Shore Skating Club hosted the annual New England Juvenile Championships. All competitors must skate both figures and freestyle in this competition. Their final standing is determined by combining the scores of figures and freestyle. Amanda was second in figures in the first test girls A category and third in the freestyle event. Her combined scores placed her second overall. She is the 1985 New England juvenile silver medalist in the first Test Girls A division.

The Nassau County Championships, held annually in Hicksville, New York and hosted by the Cantiague Figure Skating Club, was also held in March. Amanda placed second in the pre-juvenile freeskating division and brought home a silver trophy.

March 30 and 31, the Worcester Open was held and Amanda entered in the freestyle and compulsory moves events and placed third in each category, earning two bronze medals.

Amanda is a fourth grade student in Mrs. Walsh's class at the Woburn Street School. The Wilmington Figure Skating Club is very proud of Amanda and wishes her continued success in the sport of figure skating.

Award winner Wilmington's Amanda Farkas has won her share of medals. The talented local skater is a recent award winner. See story above.

Tewksbury overpowers Haverhill

Tewksbury's depth and middle distance prowess were the key factors last week when the TMHS girls track team overpowered Haverhill, 75-56. Whenever Haverhill took a first place, Tewksbury grabbed second and third. Tewksbury swept the javelin, the triple jump, the 330 lows, the 440 and the 880 as the Redgals took 24 out of 27 possible points.

The highlight of the field events was Tewksbury's double sweeps in the javelin and triple jump. Renee Juchnevics hurled the spear 87' to take first, followed closely by Sandy Keon at 85 feet and Eileen Kiely at 80'. Over at the pits, Fran Mulrain, Tricia Censullo and Lisa Thayer were taking one, two, three in the triple jump.

As the running events got underway, Tewksbury appeared to be in trouble as Haverhill won the two mile, the hurdles, the 100 and the mile, but TMHS stayed close in the scoring, as Peggy Forsyth ran a tough race to get second in the two mile, while Tracy Meehan and Amy DiGiorgio ran well in the hurdles to grab second and third.

Fran Mulrain and Jeanne Muise took second and third in the mile and Justine Short and Tricia Censullo crossed the line just behind the winning Haverhill girl to take second and third in the 100.

Then came the 440, and from that event on it was all Tewksbury. Lisa Thayer (62.7) and Chris Blake (63.5) blazed to a one-two finish in the 440, while Justine Short barely missed making it a sweep by finishing a tenth of a second out of third with a fine time of 64.8.

In the 330 low hurdles, Tricia Censullo ran a very fast 50.7 to win the event, and Kristin Conley, who is steadily improving, outgutted her Haverhill opponent to take second in 53.0.

In the 880, Kerry Silk started out in the pack and then smoked past everyone to win, while Sue McLaughlin ran the best race of her season to take second.

The final points needed for victory were scored by Renee Juchnevics and Fran Mulrain, as they took second and third in the 220. Their efforts pointed up the team concept of this victory. It was quite remarkable that Tewksbury was able to win this meet when they took first place in only five of the 15 events. But everyone was in there fighting, getting the seconds and thirds, and in the end it added up to victory.

Sports editor's note: This copy was submitted by TMHS girls' track coach Bob MacDougall.

Blues topple North Reading, 2-1

Tewksbury Blues 2
North Andover 1

Excellent ball control and passing plus hard work at midfield resulted in a Blues victory over North Andover, 2-1. This was a game that featured relentless defense leading to offensive surges.

Toni Vieira scored the game's first goal on a direct kick from 35 yards out. He placed his shot in the top right corner for the first half 1-0 lead.

The second half turned into an offensive display, with each team scoring one goal. The Blues broke through to 2-0 lead on a hard shot by Pompei Simone from the 18 yard line. North Andover scored with minutes remaining before the Blues' defensive wall of Manny Pars, Toni Vieira, Bob Munson and Joe Stevens shutdown Andover.

Tewksbury Blues vs. Harvard

Ball control and passing were the keys to this game. The Blues lost the game on a well placed corner kick headed into the net. This game saw constant offensive surges shutdown by both Tekwsbury's and Harvard's excellent defenses. Late in second period attacks by the Blues were unable to deliver a goal. The final score was Harvard, 1-0.

Aztecs vs. Roughnecks

The Aztecs fell behind 2-0 on good goals by the Roughnecks' offense. The arrival of more Aztec players solidified the team for the second half. Positional play, good passing and solid defense paid off for thre Aztecs goals, all scored by Michael DeSilva, two in offensive attacks and one on a penalty kick. The Aztecs' defensemen and midfielders turned in an excellent second half to help gain the win. Good play by Kelly Donnelly, Scott Haddad and Melissa Twohig helped gain victory.

Aztecs vs Sounders

The Aztecs team controlled the game with excellent forward play by Bryan Kelley, Andy Meier, Jason Stanichuk and Tara Coakley. Michael DeSilva scored two goals and Bryan Kelley scored one in the second half to sew up the game. Good, hard defense, expecially Jacob Sussenburger, Peter Marshall, Rob Joyce and Bob Kent, was the deciding factor.

North Reading vs. Tewksbury

Despite the score, a 3-2 loss to North Reading, this was Tewksbury International's best game of the season, as they controlled most of the first half as Tony DeAngelo opened the scoring with a superb head shot, but North Reading scored twice on defensive mixups for a 2-1 halftime lead.

The second half saw International dominate the game, keeping play in North Reading's half and peppering their goal, but their goalie was having a great game in keeping International at bay. International finally broke through to tie the game 2-2 on a rocket shot from Leo Dias. North Reading scored the winner on one of their two serious attacks of the second half with a good head shot.

Tewksbury Regulators vs. Andover United

In Division III action, the Tewksbury Regulators completely dominated newly promoted Andover United for their first victory of the season with a 6-2 scoreline. The regulators got four goals from Gildas Betencourt and two from Joe Mello along with a good defensive effort.

Tewksbury Int. 2
Littleton 2

Tewksbury International held a 2-1 lead with four minutes left in Over the Hill Soccer League action when Littleton banged in their equalizer in Division II action.

International controlled the first 30 minutes, as they built up a 2-0 lead with goals from Tony D'Angelo and John Sousa.

Littleton pulled a goal back just before halftime through a defensive slip. The second half saw International with more and better chances than Littleton, but the crossbar, several good saves and near misses kept them scoreless.

Wilmington winners

The winners of the Recreation-Rotary Shootout and the Punt, Pass and Kick competition were recently presented their trophies at a Rotary luncheon.

Dynamos, Wildcats in standoff

Dynamos 2 Wildcats 2

In April 27 Tewksbury Youth Soccer League action, the Dynamos were up 2-0 in the first half on goals by left wing Steve Gunther and center Bob Hooley on a centering pass from Dave Bell. Good all-around games were turned in by Steve Amirault and Dan Krikorian, with brilliant defense by Vicky Bolton.

The Wildcats came back in the second half with both goals from Jason Hyde with assists from both Maryalice Brady and Kathy Manseau. Strong defense by Julie O'Connor and Kerry Gravelle kept the Dynamos at bay.

Clippers 4 Falcons 1

The Clippers were led to victory by two goals from Joe Stevens and one apiece from Fran Correia and Eric Morris. Excellent on defense were Jean Quigley and on offense Chad DiCalegero. The Falcons' score came off the foot of Richie Sousa, with an assist going to Sal Rucchio. To be commended for fine offensive moves are Joey Centrella and Michael Corbin and congrats to Jay Geyer on his first tough outing in net.

Astros 5 Comets 0

In the Believe it or Not category, all five Astros' goals were scored by Steven Field, with assist points to Mark Bugley and Richard Kim. Superb defensive moves by Keith Weber and Kristin Phillips helped, but did not take away from goalie Brian McCadden's brilliant shutout.

For the Comets, Manny Espinola in goal kept the score down, while Steven Foley worked hard at offense and Jimmy Maxwell and Billy Avery did their mightiest on defense.

College Corner

Hurley sparks Plymouth State

Mark Hurley of Wilmington is a member of the 1985 Plymouth State College men's lacrosse team.

The rugged 5-10, 180 pound Hurley has used his lightening fast speed to help the Panthers score this season.

The Plymouth State laxmen have compiled a 6-4 record this season and according to head coach Dave Webster, have performed up to preseason expectations.

"I'm pleased with the way we've played this season," says Webster. "Coming into the season we were not sure how our offense was going to play. But our attack has played well all season and has shown improvement with each game. Our defense has played tough also. We're only losing five players to graduation, so we should be ready for next season as well."

Hurley is a 1980 graduate of Shawsheen Tech and is a senior physical education major at Plymouth State College.

Mark is the son of Daniel and Phyllis Hurley of Fairmeadow Road, Wilmington.

Athanasia helps set mark

Following last Saturday's New England Division III Track and Field championships, seven Worcester Polytechnic Institute cindermen are now preparing for the All-New England championships on Saturday May 11 at MIT.

"I was pleased by the performance of a number of individuals last weekend," said WPI head coach Merl Norcross. 'With a break here and there, more than seven could be going to MIT on Saturday, but I'm happy with what we got and I'm hoping for peak performances from each of the kids."

A new school mark was established by the 4X100 relay team last Saturday. The team, comprised of Wilmington sophomore Charles Athanasia, Steve Montibello, Mike Carbone, and Lloyd Tepper, ran a record time of 42.98 seconds that was good enough for third place. This time eclipsed the old standard of 43.2 set in 1982.

Montibello, who runs the first leg of the relay, also qualified in the 100 meters, as he ran a strong race, finishing in 11.08 seconds.

Callan sparks Bowdoin

From any perspective, the 1985 Bowdoin College men's lacrosse season has to be considered a success.

Unfortunately for the Polar Bears, who have won five games in a row, including a 13-5 thrashing of Amherst, the second rated team in Division III New England Saturday, April 27, it appears that the opportunity to defend their ECAC Division III New England title has come - and gone.

Top scorer for the Polar Bears is sophomore midfielder Brad Cushman of Darien, Ct., who has 17 goals and 15 assists, 32 points. He has been particularly effective in recent games, with six goals and seven assists in the Polar Bears' last two victories.

Trailing Cushman are senior attackman Geoff Kratz of Huntington, NY (14-11-25); senior midfielder Dave Callan of Wilmington (15-7-22) and senior attackman Steve Dyson of West Hartford, Ct. (17-4-21).

Gangi on a slow roller up the middle.

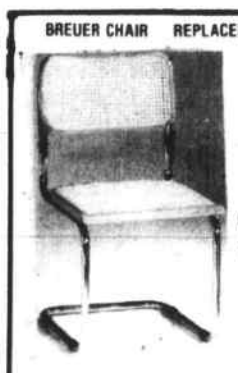

The Redmen closed out the week on Friday by coming from behind to edge Methuen, 7-6. Ron Mueller started for Tewksbury and pitched the first inning and was relieved by Tom Gallella with two outs in the second and Methuen leading 3-0.

The Rangers picked up a fourth run in the top of the fourth and appeared to be in the drivers' seat. However, in the bottom of the fourth the Redmen went to work. Todd Breslin doubled to center, Chris Mader reached on an error and Joe Kearns doubled, scoring Mader and Breslin. Rick LeDuc then singled, scoring Kearns.

The Redmen now trailed, 4-3. Trailing 5-4 in the bottom of the sixth, Tewksbury came up with three big runs. Key hits in the inning were by Jay Rideout, Joe Kearns and Rick LeDuc. Tom Gallela picked up the victory, his fourth against one loss. Todd Breslin and Joe Kearns each had three hits for the Redmen and Chris Mader had two timely singles.

Who will pay legal costs of electric rate case?

Who will pay for the legal expenses of the Reading Municipal Light Department (RMLD) in the current case where the Town of Wilmington is sueing, in the Massachusetts Deaprtment of Public Utilities, over the charges for electricity to Wilmington customers?

Selectman Rocco DePasquale wants to know. He does not believe the expenses should be borne by the rate payers in Wilmington. He discussed the problem slightly with an RMLD official after the light rate discussion in Wilmington town hall Monday afternoon.

DePasquale asked that official as to the source of the money to pay for the attorneys being used by RMLD in the present controversy. He was told that, like other instances, they would be paid out of regular RMLD funds.

That, to DePasquale, was wrong.

The rate payers in Wilmington are paying for the town counsel to present one side of the arguments, he said. They should not be asked to also pay for the counsel to present the other side of those arguments.

In the next selectmen's meeting when the RMLD case is being discussed, DePasquale says, he will introduce a resolution asking that the Massachusetts Department of Public Utilities determine that the RMLD legal costs should come out of the money that goes to Reading as profit each year. By law that fund is limited to eight percent of the profits. DePasquale thinks that profit should pay for the legal fees of Reading Light, against customers who are complaining of over charges.

Altman's sharp comments quoted in Reading

Town Counsel Alan Altman of Wilmington was quoted, in the Reading Chronicle on May 16 as saying that there are some "stiff-necked politicians" in Reading. Altman was quoted during a discussion of the current appeal to the (Massachusetts) Department of Public Utilities for a probe of the rates charged by the Reading Municipal Light Department (RMLD).

The Town of Wilmington is asking for such a probe, along with a similar request from the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce. The RMLD is opposing such a probe, as was reported last week in the Town Crier.

The Chronicle reported Altman comments on previous attempts by the Wilmington officials and Chamber officials to gather information, and how those attempts had poor results. His remarks, the Chronicle went on to say, led to the mentioning of the option that Wilmington is now asking for, to seek another source of power, and to abandon the use of the RMLD power system. It was at that point that Altman's use of the phrase came in.

"I think the stiff-necked politicians in Reading may be upset if Wilmington does that" Altman was quoted as saying. It went on to report that Wilmington residents and businesses use the bulk of the power provided by the RMLD. Should the town opt to leave the system, the six percnt investment in Seabrook and other debts would have to be borne by far fewer rate payers.

Altman also sharply differed with (Reading, Ed.) Light Board Chairman John H. Crooker's assessment of recent meetings with Wilmington officials. The Chronicle said. 'Despite Mr. Crooker's allegations that the meetings have been all sweetness and light' Altman said he would describe them otherwise. He said that the board is unwilling to discuss issues or to respond to questions from outlying towns."

"I think it's too bad this situation has evolved into this," said Altman. In comments which were critical of the light board chairman, he added that reasonable men can 'agree to disagree' but in the case of RMLD, it was impossible to 'sit down and talk to those guys."

After a review of the Wilmington petition, and of the RMLD response, the Chronicle report ended with two paragraphs, saying:

"Crocker has said his board intends to continue to meet with officials from outlying towns, and has described the Wilmington petition as 'political' in nature.

If the DPU opts for an investigation, Crooker said the baord will ask to be made a party so that it can support briefs to rebut the original contentions."

Plant sale Rain on Saturday did not stop the annual plant sale of the Wilmington Women's Club. On hand for the sale at Yentile's Farm were Jesselyn Cosman, Liz White, President Jeane Sottile, Helen Handrahan and Dora Ardolino.

Carport must go says appeals board

Robert A. Ellis may not retain a carport, attached to his home at 12 Beacon St., Wilmington. So the Wilmington Board of Appeals ruled,on May 14.

Ellis recently purchased the home. A carport, which was in the sideyard, as defined in the zoning bylaw, was a part of the home.

As a condition of the mortgage for the home, the bank which is financing Mr. Ellis required that he seek a variance from the board of appeals for the sideport. The hearing was held on April 12.

Joseph Cunningham, an abutter, spoke in opposition. The appeals board decided to view the property, before making a decision.

After viewing the property the board voted unanimously to deny the sought-for variance.

School officials must change calendar

Representatives from the Wilmington School Department, PBS Chairman Diane Allan, and renovation architect Wilson Rains met with representatives of the State Deaprtment of Education in Boston Monday to look into the 1985-86 school calendar.

According to Allan, the school dept. has to decide soon how they will meet the 180 day school requirement for next year, since they must vacate the high school from June 6 to September 15 in compliance with the renovation construction schedule.

Unless "emergency conditions" exist, said Allan, the state won't grant a waiver from the required 180 days. State reps told the Wilmington contingent they should consider several options, including no vacation break or snow days, to make up the necessary school days. If they couldn't come up with a workable option, said Allan, the school dept. would have to petition for a conversion to hours.

The issue is a bit complicated. According to Allan, the school dept. must decide whether their option would affect all schools in the system or just high school students. It may be more cost effective, explained Allan, to adjust the calendar townwide to save on such things as busing costs.

Also, the school dept. is trying to avoid any conflicts with teacher contracts. If conflicts arise, said Allan, the state would be willing to step in and talk with the teachers.

same as negotiation, and tends to lead to a unilateral decision by RMLD. He said that the rate changes represented a major shift in revenue, and represents more than the allowed eight percent profit. He said that the whole matter should be investigated, articulated and concluded before the new rates go into effect.

Scobbo called Altman's statement a pretty stiff accusation, and said that the overall rate of return was less than approaching eight percent.

Rhinerson said that the new rate schedule was designed to encourage conservation and achieve load management. He said that the rates included a provision for night "off peak" rates, if a customer wanted to have a second electric meter installed.

Defending the service charge, Rhinerson said that the charge was a proper allocation of the costs involved in billing and reading the meters.

Altman and Scobbo each expressed widely divergent opinions of the proceedings as the meeting drew to a close. Altman said that he was disappointed and frustrated, that Reading Light had been talking all around the problems.

"The tactic of Reading Light is that they will do what they want when they want," he said.

Scobbo called the meeting very productive. "The dialogue is open, and we will continue along the path of arriving at rates that are both fair and equitable," he said.

May social a success

It was reportedly a wonderful evening for all who attended the May therapeutic social at the Tewksbury - Wilmington Elks hall last Thursday. During the social a formal presentation of a $9000.00 grant check was made to chairman of the Council on Aging Peg McNeill for the senior citizen renovation and by Town Manager Buzz Stapzcynski representing the elderly residents of the town. The check was presented by Emmet Schmarsow from the Department of Elder Affairs.

Grateful thanks was offered Buzz Stapczynski and Emmett Schmarsow along with Senator Robert Buell, Dick Wilson (representing Rep. Jim Miceli) and Fred Neilson for taking time out of their busy schedules to be with us as we celebrated receiving the grant.

Rep. Miceli was missed

The presence of Rep. Jim Miceli was missed last Thursday. If it was not for all the help he has given renovating the Buzzell School into a senior center, the renovation would not have been started until next September. As a father his son's graduation from Annapolis took priority. Congratulations to Jim Jr.

Cheese and butter

Surplus government commodities, cheese, butter, flour, rice and corn meal, will be distributed at the senior center starting Tuesday, May 21 from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. until they have been all given out.

Limited storage

According to USDA regulations it is it mandatory that non-profit agencies and other eligible recipient agencies assume full responsibility for proper protective storage and utliization of all commodities they receive. For that reason, Wilmington's limited storage space will necessitate taking only one-third of its allotment at this time.

Therefore, all recipients must demonstrate their need factor by showing documentation of their participation in any of the following programs - food stamps, AFDC, Welfare, SSI, Medicaid, low income, Head Start, fuel assistance, WIC, or Unemployment. Or they may sign a declaration that their family size and income falls within the income range of No. 2 fuel assistance, i.e. a household of one, $7,470; two, $10,080; three, $12,690; four, $15,300; five, $17,910; six, $20,520.

A TV commercial junkie's confession

A friend stopped by the other day, and told us:

After reading your column on how you frequently suffer from insomnia and how you will often stay up till the wee hours of the morning watching all-night news programs, I couldn't resist the temptation to tell you that I am also a late-night tv addict.

You mentioned something about how dumb some of the tv commercials are at that time of the morning. Well, I agree. You asked what kind of people would want to advertise their products at that hour. I have a confession to make: I may not know the kind of people who advertise products at that hour, but I sure as heck know what kind of person watches them. I am what you might call a "late-night tv commercial junkie."

Let me explain further: By late-night tv commercial junkie, I don't mean that I actually enjoy watching late-night tv commercials. In fact, I can't stand them. My problem is I can't seem to resist succumbing to what late-night tv commercials have to offer!

Take a weak moment which struck me recently. I was watching a movie - I can't recall the name of it, but it was one of those old Jimmy Stewart romantic comedies - around two a.m. when a commercial for Ginsu steak knives came on the air. The commercial demonstrated all the terrific things those knives can do. You know, such as slice through a radiator hose, a tin can and an oakwood dining room table and then be able to cut a piece of steak as easy as one, two, three. I admit it, I was hooked!

The announcer said to call this toll-free 800 phone number right away. If I did, I got a special bonus. I think it was some more knives, but what the heck, I could always use them. So I got out of bed, dashed to the phone, dialed that toll-free 800 number and ordered my Ginsu steak knives.

After I hung up, and long after Jimmy Stewart and Margaret Sullivan had managed to get together, I began to wonder - no regret - having made the call for the knives. What in heaven's sake did I really need with all those Ginsu steak knives? I don't even cook! Oh, well, I figured they'd make a great wedding gift some day.

The incident with the Ginsu steak knives wasn't the only time I've given in to the weakness to call those toll-free 800 phone numbers given out at the end of once in a lifetime tv commercial offers. If it was, I would never have stopped by to tell you about my weakness in the first place. My weakness is like that of a junkie who's hooked on drugs. He can't resist taking the drugs, then waiting for the high. Well, I can't resist calling those toll-free 800 numbers, then waiting anxiously for the mailman to deliver my steak knives, or books, or pens. Or beef.

Oh, yes, beef! I got my biggest thrill ordering beef steaks, all cut and individually wrapped and just waiting to be plunked on a hot hibachi in my back yard this summer (Hey, I can use those terrific Ginsu knives then!), from all the way across the country.

Now tell me, who in his right mind would order meat through the mail? Even if the tv commercial did promise the beef steaks would be wrapped in a special container that keeps them frozen and fresh. You're talking to one right now.

Stoneham's Lakin finds a 'friendly' Nicaragua

By JIM ROUILLARD

The small Central American nation of Nicaragua is much in the news these days.

A country about the size of the state of Wisconsin, Nicaragua is beset by political and civil unrest, economic confusion, and influence by the two superpowers, as an important pawn in the international chess game of empire.

Yet, despite its problems and uncertain future, Nicaragua provides enormous beauty, and its people evoke affection and rich doses of humor to the foreign visitor, according to Stoneham's Scott Lakin, recently returned from a visit to that troubled Latin American country.

What did Lakin find in a 10-day field study trip there?

Well, among other things, disco is "staying alive," and break-dancing is in embryo.

And, more important, many of the people of Nicaragua look to the north with affection and admiration, and the strongest admiration, according to Lakin, is frequently reserved for the American "pueblo" — or people — who are, in Nicaraguan eyes, viewed as distinct from American foreign policy, with which the individual Nicaraguan may or may not agree.

But the Nicaraguan children are a delight, the tacos especially toothsome, and as for banana con leche (banana milk shake), well, if it came to a choice between that and the nectar drunk by the gods of Olympus, Lakin feels sure there would be no contest.

Scott Lakin, a six-foot-plus junior at Boston's Suffolk University, is an enthusiast: bright, articulate and earnest. A former sports writer and feature editor for the Stoneham High School student newspaper, the varsity scholar and honors graduate lives on Broadway in Stoneham, just a crow's caw from Broadway Field and St. Patrick's Cemetery.

While in Nicaragua, he said, he culled a contagious enthusiasm for the tiny Central

Scott Lakin

American nation and its people, despite oppressive heat, mighty insects, tales of atrocity, and a touch of intestinal disturbance which he experienced during (and since) his study-related visit.

Lakin's ten days in Nicaragua comprised a major component of one of his courses at Suffolk, where he is a political science major.

The trip's purpose, according to a course synopsis, was to acquaint students with the problems of development in third-world nations, alternative perceptions of United States foreign policy and the processes of revolutionary change.

Nicaragua, according to Suffolk faculty, is ideally suited to accomplish these aims. A country of 2.9 million people, it was until recently the poorest nation in Central America and historically ranked among the lowest in per capita income, literacy and health care services.

Beginning in 1979, with the overthrow of the Somoza regime, Nicaragua embarked on a new course, and through land reform, the establishment of state-owned enterprises, free medical care and universal education, she has improved the standard of living for the majority of her population in a short period of time.

Yet, as Scott Lakin observed in his recent visit, Nicaragua has serious problems as well. Principal among them: rising foreign debt, private sector disinvestment, and the insurgency of the contras, who consist largely of former members of the Somoza national guard.

The Nicaraguan Study Trip, Lakin said, which involved extensive reading about that nation's history, culture and politics, yielded for the young

My biggest problem is resisting those special "call now and get a such-and-such bonus" offers over the weekend. That's because I've been out on the town most of the night, and when I've had a couple of cocktails over dinner, forget it. My weakness runs rampant. I'll come home at one a.m. with thirty-eight dollars worth of Chinese food (I can't resist Chinese food at that hour either, even if I've just eaten a big dinner five hours earlier), plunk myself down in front of the tv and chow away as I watch some old movie or reruns of ridiculous old tv series.

Then they start to appear, those dreadfully tempting tv commercials offering an authentically designed, handcrafted Civil War chess set. The pieces are offered at very reasonable cost on a monthly basis. If you want, says the announcer, you can get the whole set at once, including a free wooden board on which to play your chess matches. Call this toll-free 800 phone number now, he says.

Sure, I'll call! I'll order the set! I don't play chess, but who cares. I'll learn, for that price. But I want the whole set now. So I call. And wait for the set to come via mail. It comes, the whole darn authentically designed, hand-crafted Civil War chess set, along with a bill for about four hundred bucks. Now all I have to do is find somebody to teach me chess.

I haven't given in to my late-night tv commercial weakness every time, though. I was able to resist calling an 800 number for an offer for thimbles once. And oh, yes, I didnt give in to an offer for early-American dolls either. Those items didn't appeal to me, no matter how dead drunk and vulnerable I might have been at the time (I wasn't drunk, but I feel it's necessary to let you know that it would take an awful lot of liquor for me to give in to one of those tv commercial offers).

I've learned to resist offers that appear in magazines finally. You know the type: but six record albums or tapes or nine books for just one little ol' thin dime. But it wasn't easy. I've got a house full of record albums and science fiction books which I ordered years ago when my addiction was in its infancy.

I think I'm getting a handle on controlling my tv commercial addiction, though. But there's always something coming down the pike to tempt me. I've just received a super offer through the mail from Franklin Mint. Coins! Now that's something I've never collected. Well, it wouldn't hurt to send for just a few of those terrific-looking foreign coins.

And then there's always those great stamp offers.....

Stoneham's Lakin discovers an open, 'friendly' Nicaragua

Stoneham resident a mind-opening means for studying a country at first-hand — his first-ever fears of flying — and a brief and light-hearted contest with one Nicaraguan, to determine whether the Boston Celtics or the Los Angeles Lakers are the "Numero Uno" of professional basketball.

Lakin and his party of 13 other students and three faculty members from Suffolk flew into Managua, Nicaragua's capital city, on one of that country's two passenger airplanes, he said. It was the first time he experienced any fear of flying, when he heard disturbing creakings from the plane's wings. (Since the recent trade embargo, Lakin added, the airline which the group used, Aeronica, does not fly to the U.S.)

Lakin's uneasiness increased a little, he added, when he saw that everyone was in uniform and carrying a gun, on the landing strip and inside the airport. The guns were automatic rifles, either Bulgarian or Soviet AK-47s, with extra ammunition clips often slung on the shoulder, Lakin said.

"I wasn't nervous as an American going into another country," he said, but he felt a bit uneasy at first about such a pervasive military presence because it was a novel experience, a military presence Americans are not used to at home. But he adapted.

The first hitch which Lakin's group encountered was, ironically, inflicted upon a student from Reading, Karen Duncan, who was the only other person from this area in the party. Karen's luggage went to the Bahamas, Scott, said, and she was "pretty cool" about it, despite having to spend a week in the same dress.

Lakin said his visit to Nicaragua included meeting with the editor of "La Prensa," one of the country's three newspapers (all owned by the same family, yet each with a differing political point of view), a provincial governor in one of the war zones, and interviews with health workers, coffee-bean pickers, workers, doctors, and members of the Nicaraguan intelligentsia, left, right, and centrist.

In the highly industrialized region of Leon, which had been a focus of the revolution that overthrew the Somoza regime, Lakin said he traveled through a section which is now in nearly total ruin, with every remaining building: guardhouse, jail or church, riddled with bullet holes.

Lakin said he heard tales of torture and death, including electrocution, the slow roasting of people on plates of sheet metal in the intense Central American sun, and the subsequent dumping of victims in a deep well.

The money system was confusing, according to Lakin, since the rate of exchange for the cordoba, the Nicaraguan unit of currency, ranged from the official rate of 28 to the U. S. dollar, to as much as 300 to the dollar, on the black market.

Lakin, who describes himself as a "very pragmatic" student of politics, wryly noted that Nicaragua will accept foreign aid of any kind from virtually anyone, including a $100-million loan from Libya, baby food from Bulgaria, "which the Bulgarians themselves wouldn't eat," and Soviet tanks which he described as "lemons which won't even go up hills."

Yet virtually everywhere his party went, Lakin said, he and his fellow Americans were treated with respect.

"The only problem we experienced in being Americans," he said, "occurred during our second night in Leon, when a huge, burly drunk approached us, loudly calling: 'Hey, you American gringos!' "

Instantly, Lakin said, a man with an AK-47 tapped the man with the butt of the gun and suggested he leave the restaurant. Then, two members of the local militia came back with the manager, apologized for the man's behavior, and insisted on giving Lakin's group a tour of the entire six-story building, begging them to return the next day for more hospitality.

Lakin said that, as an American, he felt safe, beyond his first, minor tremor of uneasiness at the airport, because virtually "all Nicaraguans want American support and funding."

Perhaps the saddest experience for Lakin during his trip was witnessing the beating of a small girl in an El Salvadoran refugee camp. Surprised at seeing the Americans, the girl dropped a can of beans, spilling the family's food for a week, and was beaten by her mother. One of the Americans gave the mother a $10 bill to stop the beating, Lakin said.

One of the least comfortable aspect of his trip was the occasional lack of water: "Throughout Nicaragua they ration water. We didn't know it, but each region gets no water for two days, on a rotating basis. It reached a point where we (Americans) didn't even want to be on the bus with each other because we truly felt like the great unwashed.

"Because of the heat and the sweat, we had got used to taking three showers a day. One da even took six," Lakin said, in t land which provided the hott sun he has ever experienc "So we weren't prepared to without water for two days."

But they did, relying on sor beer (the only cold dri available during their two-d drought) and lots of other, tep liquids.

Any minor advice? Above a don't drink the water, of cours Lakin said, but also don't forg as he did, that ice is made fro water.

On their way to a meeting at cooperative farm, Lakin said h group made an unscheduled st for gas at a small village whe one of the American party, woman in her 70s, tried to tea the village children how to c the "hokey-pokey."

That didn't work out ver successfully, Lakin said, sinc the Nicaraguan kids woul rather disco (John Travolta i still very big down there) o listen to the music of Bonni Tyler and dance to "The Dar Side of the Moon," by th Beaver Brown Band.

Lakin said he was impresse with the strides Nicaragua ha made with universal education which has been in place only since 1980. He rated the third and fourth-grade students he met as on a par or only a year behind American students of the same age.

But childhood may end early in Nicaragua, Lakin added. He said he asked a 13-year-old member of the militia why he wasn't in school, and learned the boy was the only member of his family old enough to carry a gun. "His mother couldn't carry a gun," so the duty fell to the 13-year-old, Lakin said. "Well, what will you do when you grow up," Lakin asked the boy. " 'I don't have to worry about that,' the youngster replied. 'I won't grow up.' "

Among minor facts Lakin learned on his trip: he noted that Nicaraguans, most of whom are rabid fans of the Latin American Baseball League teams, have produced a stamp of Babe Ruth with the American flag in the background. And, finally, he said that one day, when he was wearing his Boston Celtics shirt, he noticed that one of the Nicaraguans had on a Los Angeles Lakers shirt.

"Numero uno del mundo" (Number one in the world!)" Scott said, pointing in good-natured chauvinism to his own chest.

The Nicaraguan, grinning broadly, responded in kind and pointed vigorously to his own chest:

"Non, mio es numero uno!"

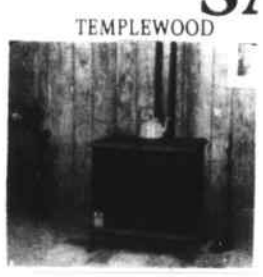

Home safety for seniors

A home safety checklist entitled "Safety For Older Consumers" is available from the Consumer Products Safety Commission (CPSC). This publication is a workbook for a room-by-room safety check for homes, focusing on older consumers.

This publication is very helpful, as it concerns safety in all rooms and areas of the house and is very easy to work with and understand, according to the Middlesex County Extension Service. The publication would be an excellent project to undertake in any home, either by the home owner or maybe a 4-H youth who would be willing to help friends and relatives to live in a safer home. The checklist goes room by room, page by page, covering most hazards that would be encountered in the home.

In 1981 over 662,000 people over the age of 65 were treated in hospital emergency rooms for injuries associated with consumer products.

For a copy of this safety checklist, it is available free from Ken Giles, U.S. Product Safety Commission, Washington, D.C. 20207.

As part of the March of Dimes Third Annual Telethon, DyDee Diaper Service will be sponsoring the first "Babies Are Beautiful" Photo Contest. Photographs of children in our age categories will be on display over the Telethon weekend - June 29th and 30th at the Sheraton Boston Hotel. The public will be invited to cast their vote for a $1.00 donation to the March of Dimes.

The age categories for the competition are: Birth - four months; four months - eight months; eight months - one year; and one year and older. Each photo must be accompanied by an official entry form. The entry fee is a $5.00 tax deductible donation to the March of Dimes.

Winners in each of the categories will receive a prize package provided by DyDee Service, The H.J. Heinz Company and Child World. The winners names will be announced on the Telethon to air locally on WLVI-TV Channel 56. In addition, Red Sox and Bruins tickets will be awarded in a random drawing of all those voting.

For entry forms and official rules or additional information, please call the March of Dimes at 329-1360.

Auditions will be held Monday Evening, June 3 at the Dance Collaborative Headquarters, 205 Essex Street, Lawrence. Those interested are asked to: DANCERS come prepared to dance, SINGERS should bring a cassette tape of a piece of music to sing to, ACTORS prepared 2 short pieces, 1 serious, 1 humorous.

Auditions are for dancers/singers/actors, we need a minimum of 18 young people 9 to 12 years old both male and female, their audition will be at 6:30 P.M. Monday, June 3.

We also need 18 to 20 teenagers/young adults both male and female and their audition will be held at 7:30 on Monday, June 3.

This audition is for placement in our 1985 Topsfield Fair Show in October called "On With The Show". This will be a musical theatre production involving extensive dance vocal and acting. We are looking for young people who have talent and want to develop fully as performers not just the finished performer.

NATURAL FAMILY PLANNING

Natural Family Planning Classes begin June 10 at St. Barbara's Rectory on Cambridge Street in Woburn.

The program - designed to teach couples how to plan, postpone or avoid pregnancy - consists of four classes held once a month for four consecutive months. The new cycle of classes will meet on Mondays from 7:30 P.M. to 10:30 P.M. Fee for the program is $30 and registration is required by calling Community Health Services at 789-2430.

The Natural Family Planning Method provides professional instruction on how to use the sympto-thermal method for interpreting a woman's body temperature, cervical mucus and other changes to identify the fertile phases of the reproductive cycle. The method is different from "rhythm" but uses no artificial means of contraception. It is as effective as any method of birth control when properly learned and applied. The method may be used by all women in all phases of the childbearing years. For more information, call Community Health Services at 789-2430.

WOMEN'S CAR CARE WORKSHOP

"Women on Wheels," a one-session workshop teaching the "street-smart" basics about car care will be presented by Mary Jackson on Wednesday, May 22, from 7:00 to 9:30 p.m. at the Hilton, at Colonial, Route 128, Exit 32 in Wakefield.

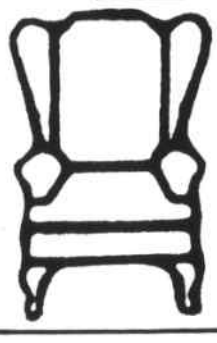

The fee for the workshop is $18.00 and includes a car care manual. For registration information call (617) 973-6408. Additinal workshops are scheduled.

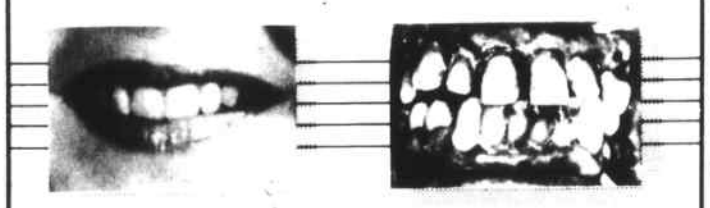

Women on Wheels includes information on diagnosing minor problems before they become major, communicating clearly and confidently with mechanics, determining if repairs and prices are reasonable, and generally-how to avoid getting ripped off.

Based on the belief that knowledge is the best defense, Mary Jackson, the former manager of an auto repair shop and veteran teacher, has developed this course to help end the frustration and powerlessness often experienced in owning and driving automobiles.

WARNING . . .

Over the past few years The Baby's Room has suggested that expectant parents be very cautious about using older cribs. We have discussed the new federal standards enacted two years ago. But now that the staff of the Consumer Product Safety Commission has just recommended you throw out any crib more than ten years old, we want to reemphasize all the recent warnings.

There are many safety problems with cribs made as recently as 1977 because of slat distances, crib design, lead-based finishes, over-sized finials, ill-fitting mattress, and poor quality construction. For your own family protection, please call us or come in, write to the Consumer Product Safety Commission, and/or read "Make Sure That Crib Is Safe" in Consumer Reports Magazine, August, 1984. The Baby's Room will continue to make every effort to provide the best and safest furniture and accessories available today.

For excellent products, prices, and service, come visit our showrooms soon.

MOVIE REVIEWS

Rochelle Flynn

Streetwise - Vamping - Gymkata

Streetwise Directed by Martin Bell. Produced by Cheryl McCall. Music by Tom Waits. Profanity, adult themes.

In July, 1983, Life magazine published an article entitled "Streets of the Lost," concerning runaway children surviving on their own in Seattle, Washington, by staff writer Cheryl McCall and photographer Mary Ellen Mark. The article and photography won awards, and Mark and McCall wanted to further expound upon the young lives in this downtrodden area of Seattle through film. British photographer Martin Bell (Mark's husband) was employed in this endeavor, the result being a searing, sometimes humorous, but ultimately depressing peek into the lives of kids from "the other side of the tracks."

The film makers followed their subjects about for two months, spending 14 hours a day with them. When actual conversations aren't employed, the children's voices are used as narrative, giving even more reality to a traumatizing look at American youth.

The cast of characters in this tragedy include Tiny, a 14-year-old prostitute whose alcoholic mother says that her daughter is going through a phase; DeWayne, a 16-year-old whose only link to a normal family life is an incarcerated father; Shadow, a hustler who thinks he's a "playboy," not a pimp; and Rat, who "dumpster dives" for his meals.

All of these kids are malnutritioned and have learned how to handle themselves on the street the way other kids learn the 3 R's. Hustling their bodies, panhandling and finding shelter are all a part of the norm.

Although there are some obvious moments of bravado, one does not feel that the subjects are performing for the camera, as was often obvious in Seventeen, another recent documentary dealing with the lives of American teenagers. Actually, the only problem with this incredible documentary is the audience it is aimed at. Although the kids apparently accept their lot and many have retained their senses of humor, this is a depressing picture. It is difficult to imagine who will want to view Streetwise, because after all is said and done, there is one point that cannot be forgotten: their eyes. All of the children share the same haunted, wistful look.

Vamping Starring Patrick Duffy, Catherine Hyland, Rod Arrants, Fred A. Keller. Directed by Frederick King Keller. Produced by Howard Kling, Stratton Rawson. Screenplay by Michael Healy. Rated R (profanity, violence, nudity).

Vamping, according to the American Heritage dictionary, has several meanings, one of which is the act of seducing or exploiting a man. It also means to improvise a tune while playing an instrument. However, Vamping the movie can be described as dull, silly fare that strains to be artistic, but fails miserably.

Patrick Duffy has the less than choice leading role of Harry Baranski, a down-on-his-luck saxaphone player who returns to his home town of Buffalo, New York. In order to get his sax back from a pawnbroker known as the Fat Man (Fred Keller) he burglarizes the home of a wealthy, young woman (Catherine Hyland) while she is at her husband's funeral. He steals a sapphire and diamond ring that entangles him in a plot of blackmail and murder. Harry also increases his involvement via an unhealthy obsession with said wealthy widow.

The idea of a murder mystery is not new to the film industry, but Vamping is a pathetic attempt to make this genre into more than it is. Director Frederick King Keller employs black and white dream sequences overblown with imagery, possibly thinking they are outre. They are not. Also, the artificial amber and rose lighting in some of the scenes would lead you to believe that this film has a dream-like quality which in reality is not the case. Not helping matters much is Hyland, who sleepwalks through the female lead, or Keller's awful impersonation of John Huston.

Vamping also has obvious continuity problems. There are several close-ups of Duffy with stubble on his face, which mysteriously disappears in the next shot, although the scene hasn't changed. The Fickle Finger of Shame award to the sloppy editor.

The last 25 minutes of the film are convoluted and absolutely ridiculous. The plot twists and turns on such an uneven keel that the slim thread of reality director Keller strives for slips away until Vamping becomes little more than a poorly scripted fairy tale.

The film was made a couple of years ago and has obviously been released because some studio executive decided that it should make some money and stop gathering dust. Better is should be gathering dust.

Gymkata Starring Kurt Thomas, Tetchie Agbayani, Richard Norton, Edward Bell. Directed by Robert Clouse. Produced by Fred Weintraub. Screenplay by Charles Robert Carnes. Rated R (violence, profanity, very brief nudity.)

Is this what becomes of our Olympic athletes? Are they to be forever banished to commercial land, or lost in that genre known as the grade B film? If we are to judge by gymnast Kurt Thomas, it would appear that, sad as it is, his career choices are no better than another former gymnast who now shills double cheeseburgers.

Thomas, who is really rather photogenic and a passable actor, appears in Gymkata, probably the worst film released so far this year. Gymkata is supposedly a new, deadly martial art combining gymnastics and karate, and is actually more appealing than the usual jumping around in bad karate movies. But, Charles Robert Carnes, who wrote the screenplay, must have been drinking formaldehyde, because it lacks any resemblance to reality in the world as we now know it.

Thomas is chosen by some ambiguous government intelligence agency to help obtain an Eastern European country, Parmistan, as the base for a satellite station. His father has been lost on a similar mission, and Thomas wishes to save the beautiful and mysterious princess (Tetchie Agbayani) of this nation, who is betrothed to a traitorous, nasty advisor (Richard Norton) to her father, the Kahn, (Edward Bell). And, as if this wasn't enough, the only way that the United States can have their station is to make sure an athlete wins at the Game, a sadistic test of strength, that no foreigner has survived in 900 years.

In an unending effort to prove that director Robert Clouse and writer Carnes must be completely without common sense, the Kahn has a weird British accent and is white, while his daughter is Oriental with an appropriate accent. And if no one outside of this dismal little nation has won the Game in 900 years, and is therefore not allowed to remain in the country, than why is the Kahn's advisor an Englishman? Also, why didn't anyone question the fact that there is a stone pommel in the middle of an ancient village from which Thomas propels himself and fights off 20 to 30 ugly villagers brandishing lethal farm weapons?

And last but not least, who is the sucker who backed this flick? Technically, Gymkata is real bargain basement stuff, but any literate person could have improved upon this stinker just by cleaning up the script. Too bad no one on the production staff met this qualification.

Poem

THE BOY, THE MAN

The boy plays reckless with me,
The man knows what he likes,
And likes what he sees.

The boy has secrets,
The man has nothing to hide.

The boy holds his tears,
Clinched in his hand.
The man has never cried.

The boy's imagination is clear,
his dreams very much alive.

The man has journeyed far,
Many dreams have died.

The boy is naive, and careless,
The man has his guilt,
The man has failed.

The boy needs time to learn,
To know what prevails.

The man needs to remember,
What he has accomplished,
Instead of what, and who he's failed.

The boy knows I love him,
The man tries not to think too much of me.

The boy says "I love you".
The man wants to be free.

I love the boy,
and I love the man.

If the man leaves,
The boy will follow.

If the boy stays,
Will the man become hollow?

ANTHONY MANCONI

Four high school boys, afflicted with spring fever, last week, skipped morning classes. After lunch, they reported to the teacher that their car had had a flat tire. Much to their relief she smiled and said, "well you missed a test this morning, so take seats apart from one another and get out your notebooks." Still smiling, she waited for them to settle down. Then she said, "first question: Which tire was flat?"

Patience is something you admire greatly in the driver behind you but not in the one ahead of you. Perhaps there should be a point in our working life where we feel our contributions have been such that we're entitled to take it easy from that point on. So if a person wants to retire and do a little traveling or pursue a hobby or sport then by all means he or she should. But one should never retire mentally because one can't "coast" very long without going "downhill."

Folks, anyone who can swallow a pill while drinking from a water fountain deserves to get well. You can depend that the person who brings gossip to you will most assuredly gossip about you. The people who attended an electrical appliance convention were served a "light lunch."

Willie Pep, the great former world champion in the featherweight division said, "First the legs go, then the reflexes go, then your friends go." Have you noticed how strange it is that people without children bring them up so well? Years ago when an earthquake seemed evident in the San Adrea fault area of California, my cousin, Doreen sent her five year old Tommy east to live with his grandmother until the alert was over. Two weeks later Doreen received this telegram, "take back your super active son, Tommy and send me your earthquake!"

If you are practicing "live and let live," that's fine, but try "live and help live," it's more effective. My Aunt Maria of Wilmington called the newspaper when her husband, Angelo was drowned while deep sea fishing and asked the cost of a funeral notice. "50 cents an inch," replied the editor. "Oh my gracious," Aunt Maria exclaimed, "that will be awful expensive, you see he was over six feet tall!"

The reason the heads of the sardines are cut off before they are packed is so they won't bite each other in the can.

"Your arm is definitely swollen but I'm not worried about it." Michael Quagenti looked at the doctor and said, "gee thanks Doc, if your arm was swollen I wouldn't worry about it either.

Winchester Fire Lieut. Bob Walsh and his wife Barbara live in Burlington and attended the Mass. State Honey show. They listened with great interest to John Mikluk, Woburn beekeeper as he described the subject of bees. My cousin Deano Murphy of Lynnfield had to give up raising bees when he broke out in the hives.

Most people think that gum was first introduced in America at Wrigley Field in Chicago, but in reality gum was first given away on "chew-chew trains and thereafter people were "stuck" on it.

Who said that judges don't have a sense of humor? This wonderful gentleman is certainly gifted with it. I was introduced to retired Chief Justice of the Chelsea District Court, John McLeod, now living in Lexington. He just roared about the judge who looking down at the defendant said, "you look familiar to me, tell me have you ever been up before me?" The gentleman perhaps misunderstood the question so answered," I don't know your honor, what time do you get up?"

Here's a lesson for all of us, it's a Latin phrase "Caveat Emptor," (Let the buyer beware). It is clearly explained in this skit. "How could you swindle all these people who trusted you?" asked the judge. "Your Honor," answered the prisoner, "people who don't trust you can't be swindled!" I am honored to have met you your Honor and I will send you a copy of Woodchips. Judy Weiss is a court officer, you know the one who says "hear ye, hear ye, hear ye," and when Judy says it, well, everyone better listen!

My little cousin Mark Aloisi asks too many questions. Father John came down to the Sunday school class and spoke to the children then said, "are there any questions?" Well Mark raised his hand then said, "Please Father John how do you get into that collar?"

Congratulationgs to Karen Devereaux Melillio, former Stoneham resident who received an award as one of ten outstanding young Leaders for 1985 given by the Boston Jaycees. Three Stoneham girls were named to the Honors List at Our Lady of Nazareth Academy for the third marking period. They are sophomores, Dawn Deignan and Jodie DeCorato as well as freshman Lisa Camillieri. Bravo young ladies.

My wife, Kathy said to me, "what do you want me to say, dinner is ready or dinner is served?" "Well Kathy," I answered, "if it is like it was yesterday just say "dinner is burnt!!"

Go and teach all nations to observe all things and I will be with you even to the consumation of the world." That was the commandment given many centuries ago and still heard by many missionaries all over the world. Fr. Joseph Blaney, O.M.I.-is a missionary who will leave St. Williams's Church in Tewksbury for a destination that is as yet unknown. It will be I am sure for the greater glory of God. "Goodbye's" are very difficult to say especially when one is loved and respected as you are Father Joe. You can be sure that the prayers and good wishes of all who had the good fortune to know you go with you and they are people of all faiths and from many cities and towns in the area. Good luck Fr. Joe.

Stephanie Meegan of Wilmington is a teacher's teacher. In her lectures she explains her award winning program, "Impact on Youth." It proves that the learning process is a continuing one. A young man sitting next to a world renowned professor at a social event asked the gray haired gentleman, "what do you do sir?" "Oh I study science" he answered. "Is that so," said the high school graduate, "I finished science last year."

During Secretaries Week Judith Kincaid of the Woburn Street School in Wilmington was honored with cards and gifts. Assistant Principal Rick DeRosa made a presentation to Judith. Vinny Harrington asked me "I heard your wife picked a new secretary for you, redhead, brunette or blonde?" "I don't know," I answered, "he's bald!"

More than half of the electric power in the United States comes from coal, notes National Geographic World. Other important sources are winter, natural gas, and oil. Other sources, such as wind and geothermal energy, provide less than 1 percent.

Austin Prep students win Olympiada awards

Eighteen Austin Prep Russian students recently competed in the Olympiada of Spoken Russian at Buckingham, Browne, and Nichols School in Cambridge. Eight of them won medals for Austin. Earning gold medals were Christian Girodet and Nick Vickers. Silver medals were won by Timothy Ramar, Sean Manseau, and Ronald Passerini, while Paul Dradransky, Peter Dubuque, and Scot Titelbaum earned bronze.

Austin Prep senior Christian Girodet earned fourth place over-all in the New England Olympiada. He was the highest-ranking Russian III student in the competition.

At the Olympiada the Austin Prep students competed against Russian students from Phillips Andover Academy, Phillips Exeter Academy, Buckingham, Browne, and Nichols School, Newton North High School, Amherst High School, and the Exeter, N.H. public school system. All students were judged in four categories. In the first panel the students discussed their school, family, friends, and interests. In the next they recited from memory a Russian poem, while in the third and fourth they discussed geography and Russian history. All was conducted in Russian.

Carlson's new concept in condo sales

STONEHAM — Well-stocked shelves, aisles of merchandise, attractive packaging, and informed salespeople are what you'd expect in any fine shop, and "The Condo Store" fits this description, if not literally then certainly in concept.

Just three weeks operational — with an 'official' grand opening set for June — the newest division of Carlson Real Estate Services already has 55 exclusive condominium listings, from Nashua to Brockton, 40 of which are under agreement. Manager, Sharon Pickett, attributes the store's success to its unique concept and the maturation of the condominium market.

The Condo Store specializes in condominium resale; differentiating the condominium customer from the traditional home buyer and providing the individual with special marketing services formally available only to developers.

"Over the last five years, the condominium market has matured," says Ms. Pickett. "The condominium concept has become a major real estate force which offers a desirable lifestyle alternative, in terms of amenities, and investment and tax considerations. The Condo Store offers a sophisticated combination of wide product selection and informational services."

With its resale focus, the Condo Store offers units that are available for immediate purchase. Its Stoneham location was chosen primarily for the surrounding area's high concentration of condominiums. Other Condo Stores are also being considered for Framingham, Nashua, Cape Cod and Boston.

As part of Carlson Real Estate Services, the Condo Store has a direct link to the company's Condominium Division which will provide a direct access to the core of condominium buyers in the Greater Boston area. The Condo Store lists and sells condominiums exclusively, giving the potential condominium buyer or seller strong targeted representation in the residential market.

Nature Facts

When was the last time you ate seaweed? Proably yesterday. According to National Wildlife's Ranger Rick magazine, seaweed that's been heated, dried and ground to a powder is commonly used in making ice cream, bread, salad dressing, chocolate milk, pastries, and milkshakes.

It's surprisingly easy to attract hummingbirds to most yards and gardens, says National Wildlife magazine. Planting red flowers, or hanging red-colored vials of sugar water are particularly enticing to hummingbirds, which are in constant search for energizing flower nectar and tiny insects.

'Dads Are Parents Too' at NEMH

Nurses on the New England Memorial Hospital Maternity unit have designed a free education class especially for new fathers.

Instructor Chris Kuhni, R.N., explains that "Dads Are Parents, Too" is also open to new mothers but adds that the emphasis is on fathers learning how to bathe, feed, diaper and identify their infants' needs.

Held twice weekly from 8-9:30 p.m., the program is planned to fall into a time convenient for fathers alrady on the Maternity floor with their families. However, dads may attend a class at any time after a birth.

Besides hands-on work-shops with their babies, fathers share their impressions on bonding and personal perceptions of parenting roles, as well as learn how to establish a place for themselves in the baby's daily care routine.

Infant needs, nutrition, comforting and visual stimulation are also examined. For further information, contact Chris Kuhni, 665-1740, ext. 798.

CHRIS KUHNI, R.N., demonstrates sponge bathing to fathers in the new "Dads are Parents, Too" class being offered at New England Memorial Hospital.

Foster children await welcoming homes

Foster children feel a severe and shocking sense of personal loss when separated from their families. These children have lost the most important people in their lives, their parents, brothers, sisters and their homes. Their familiar patterns of living has been lost.

Children react to these losses in different ways. Most often they feel abandoned and helpless. At times children even feel responsible for the family breakup.

Foster parents and their families are asked to help foster children adjust to their new lives and new living conditions.

It has been suggested that the characteristics of a good parent-child relationship are as follows: 1) openess - so that each is able to talk honestly to each other; 2) caring - so that each knows that the other is valued by the other; 3) separateness - so that each foster child can grow in their own unique ways.

Foster parents are the central members of a team of persons providing foster care for children in the community. It is important that foster parents are seen by the community for the highly skilled responsibilities they have.

If you have ever thought of being a foster parent and would like more information please call Joan Douglas at the Mass. Dept. of Social Services, Lowell Area Office, at 452-8970.

Spring cooks welcome fresh Asparagus

Velvety green, native asparagus is available now at farmers' markets, farmstands and selected supermarkets, reports the Massachusetts Department of Food and Agriculture.

Asparagus spears have been harvested in western Massachusetts since the end of April. Harvesting will continue provided frost doesn't threaten to damage the current crop. If frost does damage, the spears above ground are lost but new spears develop in just a few days and can be harvested. Asparagus plants do best during warm sunny days and can grow inches in just one day.

The recent spell of dry weather the area has been experiencing in the past few months has not affected this year's asparagus crop to any noticeable degree.

Many gardners across the state grow excellent asparagus right in their own backyards but most of the commercially produced asparagus is grown in Hampshire County. Supplies of native asparagus are limited so look for the "Massachusetts Grown and Fresher" logo when shopping for locally fresh asparagus.

When purchasing asparagus, look for smooth, round spears with a fresh green appearance and closed, compact tips. A rich green color should cover most of the spear, and it should be tender almost as far down as the green extends. For the best results, do not wash before storing but place in a plastic bag, container or in the vegetable crisper in the refrigerator. Asparagus will stay fresh three to five days.

One serving of asparagus, about 4 spears, 1/2 inch in diameter, has only 10 calories. In one cup of cooked asparagus there are about 35 calories - but remember, that's not counting the butter or sauce you add. Nutritionally, asparagus is a significant cource of vitamins A and C.

Asparagus is delicious lightly dressed with butter and salt, and eaten as finger food. Others prefer lemon butter or a Hollandaise sauce. Asparagus, Vinaigrette, dressed with oil and vinegar and seasoned with herbs, can be served hot or cold.

Here is an unusual recipe for dressing up one of the most popular first-of-the-season vegetables from local firms.

ASPARAGUS STIR-FRY

2 pounds of fresh asparagus, sliced diagonally
1 tablespoon cornstarch
3/4 cup chicken broth
1/4 cup sherry (optional)
1 tablespoon soy sauce
dash pepper
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
2 green onions, sliced diagonally
1/2 cup thinly sliced water chestnuts
1/4 cup slivered, toasted almonds

Combine cornstarch, chicken broth, sherry, soy sauce and pepper; cook, stirring constantly until thickened; simmer 2 minutes.

Stir-fry asparagus and onion in hot oil in wok about 2 minutes. Add sauce; cook 2 minutes longer. Stir in water chestnuts and almonds. Serve immediately.

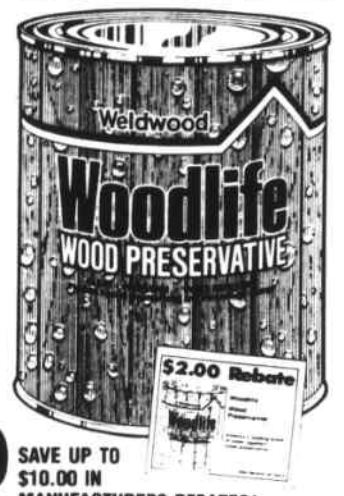

Note: stir-fry a handful of asparagus at a time, push up sides of wok and add more; repeat.

TIPS FOR HOMEOWNERS

Tips For Better Kerosene Heater Performance

Here are some tips for owners of kerosene heaters to help insure that your heater burns cleanly and efficiently.

- Fuel. Use water clear 1-K kerosene only. Other grades are higher in sulfur and burn dirtier. Kerosene stored through the spring and summer becomes impure with age and should be replaced each season.

Summer whistle stops

The Cape Cod & Hyannis Railroad blew its first train whistle of the season on May 19, providing daily service between Buzzards Bay and Hyannis, and regular weekend service from the Greater Boston Area to Southeastern Massachusetts and Cape Cod. The 1985 season, which runs through October 27, features: an improved schedule with two daily round trips on Friday, Saturday, Sunday and Monday between the Braintree MBTA stop and Cape Cod, more layover time on the Cape for daytrippers; a new car to carry bicycles; an additional tavern car; and faster track speeds.

In addition to being fun, this romantic turn-of-the-century railroad offers a refreshing alternative to the traditional and often tiresome Boston to Cape Cod drive. The train travels along tracks that were built in the mid-1800's, passengers glimpse scenery that can no longer be seen from the Cape's modern highways: rural farmlands, cranberry bogs, salt marshes, dunes at Sandy Neck, and the spectacular Cape Cod Canal railroad bridge (3rd largest in the world) are among the highlights. The trip ends in Hyannis.

All CC&HRR service includes deluxe parlor cars, two tavern cars, and comfortable coach cars. The deluxe parlor cars are available for private charters, parties, and weekend social groups traveling to and from the Cape. The total passenger capacity of the train is 475.

Further information about the Cape Cod & Hyannis Railroad can be obtained by calling the Railroad at 771-1145 in Hyannis, 848-7336 in Braintree, or send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to 253 Main Street, Hyannis, MA 02601 to receive a free color brochure.

Kite Festival

On Sunday, June 9th the Heritage Heights Kite Festival will be held in Lawrence's Veterans' Stadium between 12 Noon and 3 PM. Prizes will be awarded for kites in many categories. To be eligible for judging you must register in the "Tent" between 12 Noon and 1 PM.

For further information about the Kite Festival and all other Heritage Park programs, call 794-1655.

Magic by the Sea

There is magic every week in the seaside city of Beverly. At the Cabot Street Cinema Theatre, Marco the Magi's production of LE GRAND DAVID AND HIS OWN SPECTACULAR MAGIC CO. is now in its ninth year of making merry with stage magic, music, comedy and dance.

Every weekend three generations of stage magicians - Marco the Magi, Le Grand David and Seth the Sensational - lead the 60-member cast of singers, dancers, musicians, assistants, clowns and jugglers in this 2½-hour stage magic extravaganza. The company's year-round schedule continues on Sundays at 3 PM and select Saturday and Sunday evenings at 8 PM. For further information, call 927-3677.

Strawberry Banke

It was 26 years ago that a ten-acre historical section of downtown Portsmouth, NH, one of America's oldest continously occupied neighborhoods (settled in 1630), was salvaged from planned demolition by a small group of local citizens concerned about preserving our national heritage. In the years since, Strawberry Banke has developed, through a program of restoration and preservation, into a major outdoor history museum and cultural resource.

With 38 historic buildings (all but five of which stand on their original foundations) ranging in age from 1695 to 1945, the museum features seven working craft shops, period gardens of several historic eras, and a wide variety of exhibits depicting four centuries of cultural and architectural change in the Portsmouth neighborhood that came to be known at Puddle Dock. The museum neighborhood is open daily from 10 AM to 5 PM.

For further information on Strawberry Banke and events and programs scheduled for the 1985 season, contact the museum at P.O. Box 300, Portsmouth, NH 03801, or call 603-436-8010.

This week we explored the diversity of places to go this summer. We are always open for further suggestions. If you have knowledge of an event of interest to all that we have overlooked, write, care of this local newspaper and enlighten us. We're all packed up and rarin' to travel and visit.

Scientists assert it's inevitable that Earth will someday be hit by an asteroid large enough to cause mass extinctions, says National Geographic. Such a castastrophe probably wiped out the dinosaurs 65 million years ago.

SARIS AND COSTUMES

An Indian costume and sari showing is planned at the Wenham Museum to highlight its current exhibit, "My India, My Gujarat." This event takes place on Sunday, May 19, when visitors will have an opportunity to see henna handpainting and other forms of ladies' adornment. Traditional red forehead marks, decorative flowers in the hair, and black kohl eye makeup will be demonstrated and explained as the models, young women from the Indian community, prepare for the fashion show, "A Sari Is a Sari, or Is It?" The manner in which this traditional garment is worn will also be shown.

curator of the exhibit, will describe the intricate processes of textile printing and embroidery which embellish the fabrics with their distinctive color and design. Spiced tea will be served at the conclusion of the program. Admission for this event is $4 ($2 for Museum members) and also includes a visit to the Museum to see the current exhibit and world-famous doll collection and a tour of the 17th-century Claflin-Richards House.
